Thread: Whats the dumbest thing you believed as a kid?

When I was 7, I was absolutely convinced that if I swallowed a watermelon seed, a watermelon would grow in my stomach. My mom caught me staring at my stomach for hours, waiting for it to happen. I'm still not sure if she ever stopped laughing.

That's such a classic childhood belief! I can totally picture you waiting for the "watermelon bump" to appear. It's crazy how seriously we took those things as kids.?

When I read the title... before clicking in, this was the exact thing that popped in my head! ?

Oh man.

My mom worked for a doctors office, and she told me that when people don't eat, their stomach comes out of their ear. Fast forward to me being 14 and my step sister had something in her ear and I asked my step mom if she had ate lately because it could be her stomach. I said with all the confidence in the world.

I was thinking of this too ?

I guess Santa...

I mean the whole story doesn't make any sense if you think about it lonneee - October 9, 2025, 12:44 pm

that fish could fly

Deany - October 9, 2025, 12:44 pm

Santa and the easter bunny

I was half convinced that I WOULD finally find Narnia in SOMEBODY'S Wardrobe eventually if I checked every person's home that I went to.

The tooth fair my dude ?

Jamika - October 9, 2025, 2:14 pm

They used to tell us that a kid was trapped in the school for two months, and that he died and his ghost now haunts the bathroom... damn them.

LOL. My childhood best friend believed the same thing regarding eating strawberries.

Oh God, I can't believe I'm admitting this, but I have a very blurry and fragmented memory of being placed in a shopping cart as a baby or very young toddler and thinking black people were made of chocolate.

Was definitely not expecting to see a post like this.

sharn - October 11, 2025, 12:34 pm

I believed chocolate milk came from brown cows.

I felt betrayed when I learned the truth.

Yo that's amazing. Does it not come from brown cows though?

We had an old civic that sometimes the radiator fan would run for a couple seconds or something after turning off the car. I was convinced the car was going to blow up so I would try to get away from the car. Was scary at the time

Probably that from drinking coca cola my feet turn black, I was convinced this would happen and that they eventually die off from this ;(Drinking my first cola was a good feeling but the day after I couldnt stop looking if something changed.

This is gold! I feel like I've also been in a similar situation where I thought a car was gonna blow due to the sounds it was making. Good ol times

My grandpa had a spider in the bathroom.
I often saw it & I was terrified.

Until he one day told me the spiders name was Herbert and it was his friend, he allowed it to live there, and it paid rent

I did from the bottom of my heart believe him

I remember getting extremely worried and went down a rabbit hole when the world was supposed to end in 2012. lol

DAL-SHA - October 15, 2025, 1:57 pm

i believed that electricity runs everything , including cars in the streets ?? so when the lights are out , cars should stop working !!
