

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: The Machines That Make Music: Inside the Global Boom of AI-Generated Songs

Stanley - October 9, 2025, 6:55 am

The Machines That Make Music: Inside the Global Boom of AI-Generated Songs

AI music is no longer niche: 12M+ users are creating songs, from Times Square billboards to Douyin raps. Platforms like Suno and Sora merge making with remixing, raising new questions about copyright, creativity, and culture.

<https://hackernoon.com/the-machines-that-make-music-inside-the-global-boom-of-ai-generated-songs?source=rss>

Vectura - October 9, 2025, 7:05 am

Honestly kind of wild how fast AI music is taking off. It's amazing what people can make now, but it really blurs the line between creativity and automation.

Aeowulf - October 9, 2025, 2:39 pm

Most of the AI stuff has been obvious AI, and not that great. I haven't sought any out, so I am likely missing out on a lot of it.

Michael - October 9, 2025, 11:14 pm

Didn't Spotify delete a lot of AI generated songs?

Skorp - October 10, 2025, 11:26 am

Listened to a couple AI songs last week, they weren't bad. I am neutral on this I guess, as long as it has a good beat, doesn't matter to me how it is made.