Thread: What is your most favorite Conspiracy Theory?

As the title reads, I am sure we all have one, which we believe is true deep down but hate to admit it as we would look like quacks for believing as such.

Honestly, the one that always fascinates me (though I don't fully believe it) is the idea that major historical inventions or clean energy technologies have been quietly buried by corporations or governments to protect certain industries. There's just enough truth in how money and influence work to make it feel almost plausible — but also just enough secrecy to keep it in “conspiracy” territory.

As someone who buys into the buried tech theory, I'd say the idea holds weight because we've seen how money and power can steer progress. History shows patents disappearing or projects stalling when they threaten the wrong industries. I mean you only need to look at how electric cars were sidelined for decades. The secrecy keeps it murky, but the pattern of influence is hard to ignore. It's less “conspiracy” and more a quiet reality of how systems protect themselves. I mean why would you uproot centuries of assets in place for something new to take over, when you don't have total control over it.

I believe there are aliens hidden here on Earth. Deep state knows it and have interacted with them.

JoshAllen - October 11, 2025, 6:36 am

My favorite conspiracy was Apple slowing down iPhones after a new release, which essentially turned out to be true.

True, Deep state definitely knows a whole lot more than what the general public is allowed to know. That's for sure.

I didn't know about this. But than again, I am not shocked. Major Corporations are... disgusting.

9/11 was an inside job. It's true. I will take that to my grave.

plops - October 12, 2025, 8:21 am

Idk I have this retarded thought that early humans have been around since pangea fighting dinosaurs. I have 0 proof of this. But I like to think about that sometimes Hot take, but I also have my doubts about certain aspects of ww2. I am not a holocaust denier by any means. But I do think a lot of the info is heavily propagandized and/or false. Again 0 proof.

Palestine - October 12, 2025, 9:54 am

Dam definitely a good question I know I have a few but the one I can think of right now is the Philadelphia experiment (as I just mentioned on another thread), that'd definitely be awesome if it was real

Well, there seems to be a lot of evidence supporting that. So, it doesn't seem farfetched, that it was all another deep-state work.

Humans fighting Dinosaurs - since the ancient times. That's an interesting thought. Well, History is exactly that, 'His-story' - so, if we have evidences and supporting stuff to back it up, all good. But even in that scenario, people are still not knowing the 100% truth. Because one thing is for sure, the Government knows a lot more than what they tend to let the general public know. That's how it has always been. Secretive knowledge retains with the elite few.

The Philadelphia experiment. Truth be told as I wrote above, anything where Government is involved - there is a lot more to the story than we end up knowing. So, surely, there must be more to the story.

I think at this point in time most people can agree that 9/11 was more than just a conspiracy, especially with all the evidence available. I know its hard for a lot of people to believe that our own gov't would ever allow such a horrific thing to happen on our own soil to our own people but they'd be surprised to find out how far the gov't has been known to go to achieve whatever they wanted.

Headspace - October 14, 2025, 5:17 pm

I think my favorite conspiracy theory is that fiber optic technology and advancements are from reverse-engineered UFO/UAP technology.

I enjoy planting this seed into the minds of the younger apprentices at work so that they can stew on it all shift - also makes for interesting points of discussion during the good ol' graveyard shift.

Jinu - October 14, 2025, 5:25 pm

I enjoy reading about conspiracy theories, mostly for the creativity behind them rather than truly believing. One that always fascinates me is the idea that some historical events have hidden motives behind them. It's interesting to think about, even if I don't take it too seriously.

Hollow earth or ocean dwelling ?

DAL-SHA - October 16, 2025, 1:08 am that there is life outside this earth , we have aliens or extra terrestrials who lives on other planets ...

Key - October 16, 2025, 2:31 pm

I believe Earth isn't the only planet that has life. There could be other worlds out there where living creatures exist just like us. They might be so far away that we have no way of connecting with them. I think they could be humans or perhaps completely different kinds of beings. Maybe they're more advanced than we are, or maybe they're still developing.

That would be really crazy, but as said it's just a theory.

Well, true. We have crossed that era of it being addressed as just conspiracy. If one digs deeper, there is enough evidence out there. Or at least, that's what I remember, that majority of the American citizens consider it to be an inside job. And I agree, government does, what government wants.

From captured UFO/UAP - that's something I never thought about it. Very interesting, do you think AI could also be something which was done in a similar manner?

True, I love reading, watching and learning about it. The more I know about it, the more confused I become about the world that we live in. What's true, and what's not.

Well, considering the Ocean is vastly unexplored in those depths. Ocean dwelling doesn't sound the least bit unreasonable. As for Hollow Earth, always had a fascination with the concept behind it ever since reading Jules Verne.

Oh this is highly probable. I mean come on, with 2 trillion galaxies out there, its impossible for human beings to ascertain that there is nothing out there.

Ah yes, well, I think, anything having to do with Government can never be classified as a conspiracy theory. It has happened in some capacity, we just don't know the full 100% details.

RiveR29 - October 21, 2025, 3:31 am

Oh YES! the one theory I somewhat support is. The phantom time conspiracy theory is a pseudohistorical conspiracy theory first asserted by Heribert Illig in 1991. It hypothesizes a conspiracy by the Holy Roman Emperor Otto III and Pope Sylvester II to fabricate the Anno Domini dating system retroactively, in order to place them at the special year of AD 1000, and to rewrite history to legitimize Otto's claim to the Holy Roman Empire.

So yeah, it kinda makes sense. Even tho I am not believing this theory 100%.

It's actually kind of terrifying when you sit down and realize how much evidence there is proving it was an inside job because that means our government attacked their own country and citizens. It's really fucked up

Eran - October 21, 2025, 10:51 am

Don't have a favorite one, reads and heard countless of them. Can definitely see the truth is quite a few of them. But I never went down the rabbit hole.

PvtPartz - January 19, 2026, 7:17 am

There are no such things as lizard overlords, and that is exactly what a lizard overlord would say.

my favorite are the tunnel systems that connect every city in the country, and the underground cities. only because a long time ago a buddy and me found a mine entrance in the woods and we went back the next day with supplies and went in and it was huge, i mean massive with old donkey stables, sleeping quarters all sorts of shit. we were down there more then 24 hours and it got to a point where the hair on the back of your neck stood up there was something down there that didn't want us there, and we had to get back topside for a check in that if we missed our more sensible friends would call the Cavalry and send em down after us, and that's a bad thing cuz then the whole town looks at you like your retarded so ya we double timed out of there it was crazy. since humans have been on this earth they have been digging, i don't think people realize the scope and enormity of what's right under their feet. there were rooms with industrial sized ore crushers that was just left down there.

there was other scary stuff but that's for a different subject.

TheNaturalBoy - January 19, 2026, 9:00 pm

To be honest, I don't exactly remember how some conspiracy theories go. However, I really like the Hollow Earth story. Even before the recent Godzilla movies and similar things came out, I think it had already been mentioned in stories, novels, TV shows, and cartoons. If I remember correctly, in a

YouTube video I watched a long time ago, it was mentioned that someone had seriously proposed this theory at some point, and later it turned into a conspiracy theory, where many people believe that the government (almost always the U.S. government) hides it from the public. I don't really believe it, since I don't even fully know what it's about, but I really like the idea that something like that could exist—especially if it involves new species, exotic vegetation, and much more diversity than what exists on the surface :3

MoOne - January 21, 2026, 3:42 am

Has anyone got any notable theories that turned out to be true? I love watching videos on those

Rahul007rhp - January 21, 2026, 6:51 am

RiveR29 - January 27, 2026, 11:02 pm

Not as much a conspiracy theory but more of a info hazard.

But i find the idea of Roko's basilisk extremely interesting.

Also two conspiracy theories that pretty much tie up together is that We are the only intelligent species in all of space, which in turn would also make it much more plausible that we live in a simulation.

That Vladimir Putin got his people to spread a bunch of propaganda all over the internet telling people that if their family member ever said anything "wrong" that means they are toxic and you should go "No Contact," with your family members and pretend that your living family members are dead supposedly for your mental health.

It's so sick and twisted and against what any other generation of people in history would encourage, but it's being embraced all over the first world.

I believe it is a divide and conquer cold war tactic spread by enemies of the USA and the first world because the cold war never ended.

Where did I get this idea from? My own head.
