

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Movie that was worth watching in Cinema?

RangoWorld - October 11, 2025, 6:37 am

Last movie that was worth watching in Cinema for me was The Batman. 2020 I believe

Charlie Sheen - October 11, 2025, 7:20 am

Top Gun Maverick.

Vectura - October 11, 2025, 7:21 am

I'd probably say Dune: Part Two — that one was totally worth the cinema experience. The visuals, the sound, the atmosphere... it just hits different on the big screen. Most movies I'm fine watching at home, but that one felt epic enough to justify the ticket price.

RangoWorld - October 11, 2025, 7:23 am

(Oct 11, 2025 07:20 AM)Charlie Sheen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Top Gun Maverick.

Ah. I was away tending to a family matter and I somehow missed this. ?

(Oct 11, 2025 07:21 AM)Vectura Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'd probably say Dune: Part Two — that one was totally worth the cinema experience. The visuals, the sound, the atmosphere... it just hits different on the big screen. Most movies I'm fine watching at home, but that one felt epic enough to justify the ticket price.

I watched the first one also. It was good. Everything the visuals and all that.

But story for me didn't clicked. It felt too grand, slow and out of place in moments.

aj33b9009 - October 11, 2025, 10:41 am

Mad Max: Fury Road. I saw it three times

sharn - October 12, 2025, 3:33 am

Avengers in cinema feels bigger.

The visuals are insane.