Do you guys hate the outdoors or mosquitoes or what?

Deany - October 13, 2025, 4:20 pm

Something about going missing

plops - October 13, 2025, 4:22 pm

I love to go camping. I love the outdoors. When I am at work all day I think about getting out and maybe going outside and taking my family camping and fishing. But when the day and the week wear me down I just want to relax. So then it turns into playing with the kids at home and relaxing.

Maybe it's not so much that people hate the outdoors, but the exhaustion of slowly adding more work hours to your day as you get older.

But fuck mosquitos. If there's one things that indians love, it's rolling around in cow shit. But i use OFF for mosquitos.

I work at a store where we sell camping equipment, and I can safely say, people DO go camping.

PhillyStyle - October 14, 2025, 3:09 am

IDK, but on dating apps women sure do love to say they love the outdoors and hiking. Like none of them say they love PCs and Video Games which is the appropriate answer for me. ?

aj33b9009 - October 14, 2025, 6:07 am mosquitoes ??

Hackers - October 14, 2025, 6:18 am

Love camping, but not a fan of the "camp grounds" most people go to.

For me, camping is in the middle of the woods, alone or with a few others... Modern "camping" is parking a car in a dirt or grass field 40 feet away from another family, and pitching a tent.

That's not camping, to me...

Appalachian trail survival is "camping". The modern campsite is more like an extended beach stay with vending machines nearby and indoor toilets.

Yin Yang - October 14, 2025, 6:24 am

I haven't been camping in a minute ngl.

I work outside 80 hours a week. Why would I want to be in a hot ass tent.

Jamika - October 14, 2025, 11:32 am

I don't find activities now days that include camping to join , was fun when i was young though

Too many 'top 10 creepiest things seen while camping' compilations on YouTube ?

I genuinely used to go camping a lot, but it got pretty boring, that's more on me than the actual activity though, I'd usually just smoke a few joints and drink a few beers and listen to music. I'm too ad/hd rattled now to enjoy sitting there + none of my friends enjoy camping so it's only really with my Dad and I think it's just overall a bit dull now.

How quaint.

This is good news! Camping is just another word for what all of our ancestors used to do!

RangoWorld - October 15, 2025, 8:10 am

Too caught up on with city life. Not enough time to think to go touch grass.

You have to make time to touch grass.

Oh_Well - October 15, 2025, 11:52 pm

Camping is not bad for a couple of days, otherwise I prefer a room/apartment/hotel.

I value my sleep and I want to sleep well and warm, so after a long week at work, it would be a punishment to make me sleep on the ground in the cold

Michael - October 16, 2025, 12:23 am

Sometimes we go camping, it's very fun.

True, true... It's noticeable that kids don't go out as much as kids of the past sharn - October 19, 2025, 10:49 am

Many people avoid camping because it seems uncomfortable, but I enjoy the challenge and the fresh air.

Lowkey - October 19, 2025, 1:33 pm

That's the spirit. You just gotta love a dark sky and blanket of stars.

Darkroom - October 19, 2025, 1:40 pm

Go camping every year. I had a New Yorker laugh that we still have State Fairs and didn't know they still existed.

Lowkey - October 19, 2025, 1:48 pm

Yearly traditions are solid. Especially with a task so close to nature.

I got a weird notification on my phone that I spent 1 hour and 20 minutes less on my phone this week. So, I guess it was only 22 hours and 40 minutes.

Rsynced - October 19, 2025, 7:12 pm

Camping in FLORIDA is REALLY BAD, I can just pop a tent in my backyard if I want to be
"Miserable for a weekend... lol

I--I - October 19, 2025, 7:24 pm

They do, I can think of 10 camp sites that take 2 hours or less to drive to from my house and are packed almost year round. Couldn't even get a camp site as a "walk in" this summer at one of them.

Lowkey - October 20, 2025, 3:06 pm

Well maybe one day we can all just go camping together. HF camp trip.

?ystem - October 20, 2025, 3:29 pm

I personally love camping but haven't really had the time to do it for a long while. Plus, I don't really have anyone else to join me these days with people being glued to their phones. The mosquitoes don't bother me anymore. At least that time I went way up north and camped by that lake. They were everywhere, and I had so, so, so many bites in that week that ever since then I just don't get those welts anymore.
