I still have to watch this one more...

Deathwish was interesting, but might not fit the mould of what people call traditional anime.

Yeah, Gachiakuta is already out, and honestly it's been one of the most refreshing releases lately. The animation style matches the manga's chaotic energy way better than I expected, and the whole trash-world aesthetic looks insane in motion.

If someone wants something new that doesn't feel like the same recycled shonen, this one's worth checking out.

I'd say it's one of the stronger new anime of 2025 so far.
