

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How I Built an AI Prompt That Writes LinkedIn Articles That Actually Get Read

Stanley - October 17, 2025, 5:55 pm

How I Built an AI Prompt That Writes LinkedIn Articles That Actually Get Read

The AI in ChatGPT, Claude, or Gemini gives you generic advice, corporate jargon, and content that screams "I was written by a robot" The AI needs context. It needs to understand LinkedIn's algorithm, user behavior, and what actually drives engagement on the platform. I built a comprehensive AI prompt system that addresses these issues.

<https://hackernoon.com/how-i-built-an-ai-prompt-that-writes-linkedin-articles-that-actually-get-read?source=rss>

Aeowulf - October 18, 2025, 6:48 am

Oh, look, more enshitification at the hands of AI. FML.

Hackers - October 18, 2025, 9:18 pm

Linkedin is full of BS, but if you prompt it well you can do it. I choose to write my own posts on there personally, but I see a lot of people using AI and half of them think the emojis help the cause.

I've always been a writer, and even freelanced as one alongside coding projects at the start of me making money online. I am 100% pro-AI, and using it for companies. I don't like it when people make their whole personal profile run by it though.

DAL-SHA - October 19, 2025, 2:44 am

this is interesting ..

the dude that did this had a background in AI Prompt engineering i guess ..

its not as simple as people think it is !

(Oct 18, 2025 09:18 PM)enki Wrote: CITE LinkedIn is full of BS, but if you prompt it well you can do it. I choose to write my own posts on there personally, but I see a lot of people using AI and half of them think the emojis help the cause.

I've always been a writer, and even freelanced as one alongside coding projects at the start of me making money online. I am 100% pro-AI, and using it for companies. I don't like it when people make their whole personal profile run by it though.

i salute you for this !!! Bullseye sir !!

truely , LinkedIn is full of BS !! ?

Ieste - October 30, 2025, 11:50 am

It's important to write articles that generate engagement, not just ones that get read.

JoshAllen - November 8, 2025, 3:17 pm

I mean, it still comes off that AI has written it. I understand the goal but don't think it is there yet.