

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Simplifying Domain Management with Azure Front Door: A Step-by-Step Guide

Stanley - October 18, 2025, 6:20 pm

Simplifying Domain Management with Azure Front Door: A Step-by-Step Guide

Managing multiple Azure resources with custom domains can quickly become messy.

<https://hackernoon.com/simplifying-domain-management-with-azure-front-door-a-step-by-step-guide?source=rss>

Hackers - October 18, 2025, 7:31 pm

This looks simple enough. I don't really need this currently, but their setups are simple enough for domain records & server networking, so that's a plus.

I still think it's easy to just pop into the registrar, manage records, and SSH in to manage nginx/apache, certbot/letsencrypt, etc.

I guess GUI isn't bad for most, but over the last few years I've started to really dislike UIs because they change, load slow sometimes, etc whereas a CLI tool often stays the same for longer.

I am bringing this up because it's service dependent & I don't know enough about Azure or this specific domain setup to know if it's quick & easy, or bloated and tedious. GoDaddy would be an example of a tedious platform, whereas NameCheap feels quick.

Anyone using Azure enough to convince me to try it again?
I'm open to it, but haven't been in there for a while

DarkSighted - October 18, 2025, 7:34 pm

that's cool and all but wanna join my simplex group?

[https://j\[smp19.simplex\[.\]im/g#Az7umnuiG_c1oRMephAMCXf2agldif7WTaQDzbCOtUE](https://j[smp19.simplex[.]im/g#Az7umnuiG_c1oRMephAMCXf2agldif7WTaQDzbCOtUE)

DAL-SHA - October 19, 2025, 2:33 am this is interesting !! will bookmark this webpage of later , i think it might come in need in the near future ! ??

Ieste - October 19, 2025, 4:37 am

Good walkthrough for anyone juggling multiple Azure domains. Front Door saves a lot of headaches.