What is a popular "fact" or "common knowledge" that you hear people repeat all the time, but know to be completely false?

Cracking your knuckles gives you arthritis. It's totally false.

The Great Wall of China is visible from space with the naked eye.

But it is actually too narrow and blends with the natural landscape, though city lights at night are visible from orbit.

Lightning never strikes the same place twice, they say.

I have seen it hit the same skyscraper multiple times.

Dogs seen in black and white.

I forget the exact term but they basically see less colors than us, but their world is colorful.
