I think situational awareness is probably something most people are bad at.... at least the new generation what about you guys?

Deany - November 1, 2025, 5:53 pm

Definitely existing. Kinda rough !

I interact with thousands of people a week, common sense.

The ability to react to ordinary situations.

Yeah common sense is definitely a main one

Especially in this time and age inflation is just insane. The cost of things today compared to 10 15 years ago is just mental

Yeah definitely agree i dont blame people that are living with no savings in this economy it feels like the economy is never gonna get back to normal. everything just increasing in price....
food prices keep going up and shrinkflation as well

I hate to say it but if we (America) wasn't giving away BILLIONS AND BILLIONS of dollars to foreign countries for no reason rather than supporting our own people the cost of living wouldnt be nearly as much

Yeah for sure its just digging us more in the hole it doesnt do anything for the people at all

I think you're spot on with situational awareness. So many people that can't read a room.

I interpret thousands to mean at least 3,000

$3,000 / 7 = 428.57 / \text{day}$

Assuming a normal 8 hour work day, that's 53.57 people per hour or 0.89 people per minute.

This is for 7 days a week.

What exactly do you do? Replying to people on social media isn't really a good metric for gauging common sense, especially when the internet is inundated with grifters, rage baiters, and trolls.
