

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Consulting for AI Startup

Realing - November 1, 2025, 9:56 pm

Hello everyone,

my friend and I, who is an engineer, have this vision for a tech software that we are wanting to create. It will require an AI model, API, and other components to integrate and interact with each other for it to be successful. I am a very intelligent person, who has the connections, and the investor mindset, along with the pitch and idea, but lack the tech skills to create the software. This idea is for the construction/homebuilding industry and there are currently no competitors. An untapped market where the discussion of AI has been overlooked and rather applied to the manufacturing industry, financial services, etc. However, I am certain that we can successfully sell this software for millions of dollars. Trust me on this, I am not kidding. I am willing to give equity if someone is willing to help. I am wanting to consult with someone, hear about their experience, and see if they're capable of this type of project and work with my friend.

What I am looking for:

- People who have experience dealing with AI models
- Have python and 3D output experience
- Understands complexity, and is willing to do what it takes [warn]