

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Adult content market - saturated by AI?

Hackers - November 4, 2025, 7:36 pm

Just curious if anyone is predicting a decrease in adult content.... even by real models...

Certain AI models are very accurate & can produce HQ content that is basically indistinguishable from reality for amateur style, professional shots, etc.

I think verifications still need some work, but there are concepts working already for that too

I predict that porn stars, adult content managers, and all of these markets will take a huge hit because there's nothing stopping anyone from generating exactly what they want.

Jeffr0 - November 11, 2025, 5:46 am

People don't want to take the time to learn how to create their own content. There's opportunity for people who niche down, but because any random guy on the internet can be a "model", it's become extremely saturated. I pivoted out of adult a year ago. Everyone is fighting for scraps now. It definitely ain't like it was 5 years ago. I accepted this a long time ago. You should too. There are better opportunities out there. Adult is not the only thing you can use AI for.

Hackers - November 11, 2025, 6:03 am

(Nov 11, 2025 06:46 AM)Jeffr0 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) People don't want to take the time to learn how to create their own content. There's opportunity for people who niche down, but because any random guy on the internet can be a "model", it's become extremely saturated. I pivoted out of adult a year ago. Everyone is fighting for scraps now. It definitely ain't like it was 5 years ago. I accepted this a long time ago. You should too. There are better opportunities out there. Adult is not the only thing you can use AI for.

Makes sense, I am not involved in this market at all

I figure pornstars will make less and less as people realize it is both more ethical and higher quality to have AI generate porn instead.

zakupy - November 25, 2025, 12:37 am

Making AI content is easy, quick and cheap.

Meow - January 3, 2026, 1:02 am

I think it's a different niche, someone wants to create their own AI girlfriend and talk to "her". Look at Candy AI and other similar websites, you can create your own girlfriend, literally get her DDDD boobs and an unreal (impossibly) tiny waist.

And someone just wants to jerk off to Angela White and then listen to her talk about xyz on different podcasts or interviews. He's basically a fan, like how someone follows LeBron James or Beyonce.

People are weird, there are guys out there that jerk off to werewolf cartoons and stuff...

Adult industry isn't just about the pixels, it's about the parasocial relationship, one type of audience just wants the pixels (the AI guy) and other wants a day in a life type of thing where he's in love with her, sends her money (or if he's broke just jerks off for free) and feels like he has a special connection going on with the model.