

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Do you think BTC will hit 60K, 70K, 80k, or 90K?

Hackers - November 16, 2025, 11:44 am

How low can you go? It's bitcoin limbo time for the bears and shorts

I am bullish long-term, but have been predicting a correction to 60-65K in my TA model, and when accounting for optimism, then 70K. I've posted a few times about waiting for a 70-90K BTC price, but with a strong chance at support around this 92k area.

Do you think we'll dip lower, and if so, how low will we go?

Noble - November 16, 2025, 12:37 pm

It can reach 60k easily—worst-case scenario, mid-to-late 40k. When BTC goes down, technically, it will still be in a bull market.

I'm going to repeat this again, as an investor's daily and weekly fluctuations should startle anyone on the way down, considering the long-term perspective.

Err0rX - November 16, 2025, 1:22 pm

(Nov 16, 2025 12:44 PM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How low can you go? It's bitcoin limbo time for the bears and shorts

I am bullish long-term, but have been predicting a correction to 60-65K in my TA model, and when accounting for optimism, then 70K. I've posted a few times about waiting for a 70-90K BTC price, but with a strong chance at support around this 92k area.

Do you think we'll dip lower, and if so, how low will we go?

I think a drop into the 60–65K range is possible if this support breaks. Nothing huge, just a normal correction. Long-term still looks bullish, so even if we dip lower, I see it more as a reset before the next move up.

Hackers - November 16, 2025, 1:25 pm

I didn't post this in the Marketplace, it should be in Money tab, not Market tab!

Mewtwo - November 16, 2025, 2:22 pm

$65-74k is my prediction. I predicted this with some AI analysis based off historical data.

Hackers - November 16, 2025, 2:33 pm

(Nov 16, 2025 03:22 PM)Mewtwo Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) $65-74k is my prediction. I predicted this with some AI analysis based off historical data.

Yeah, I think so too, and that's still bullish as well!

6 - November 16, 2025, 5:09 pm

It will go to 90k and go back up to 130k

90k buying is the best option

Beherit - November 16, 2025, 5:37 pm

(Nov 16, 2025 06:09 PM)6 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It will go to 90k and go back up to 130k

90k buying is the best option

Would this be the short-term move within a few months?

abdelx95 - November 16, 2025, 6:04 pm

Isn't a good thing if btc price drop to 90k

Institutional will stop to invest because of this fluctuation

And that's a bad thing for microstrategy and other investors...

maybe is because they are selling before end of year so they need liquidity on balance

SIM-4716193 - November 16, 2025, 10:52 pm

(Nov 16, 2025 07:04 PM)abdelx95 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Isn't a good thing if btc price drop to 90k

Institutional will stop to invest because of this fluctuation

And that's a bad thing for microstrategy and other investors...

maybe is because they are selling before end of year so they need liquidity on balance

Institutional investors will always hedge their profits.

I think they know much better about the VIX of crypto assets.

Costanza - November 17, 2025, 3:18 am

10-20k.

Hackers - November 17, 2025, 9:08 am

(Nov 16, 2025 06:09 PM)6 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It will go to 90k and go back up to 130k

90k buying is the best option

I think 90k is a safe buy too, I keep saying 70-90K, but what this really means is be prepped for 60k and be okay buying at 100k.

I am holding off on lump sums, and I'm willing to be wrong... But I will lump sum into Bitcoin at that range, ideally at 65K but will start buying at < 90k

I also will not change my mind on this for a while, we could bump around between 90-120k multiple times

January this year I said we would end cycle at 112k and I was about 10K off, so giving myself some leeway by around 10k on bottom too now.

(Nov 16, 2025 06:37 PM)Beherit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Would this be the short-term move within a few months?

It's hard to time the market, but based on trend lines, we could do a "crab walk" up & down numerous times and still hit 140K at start of 2026 without any major anomalies

I randomly said we'll be at $136,377 on February 28, 2026 so you can assume we'll be at 135-137 on the exact day ;)

RE: How high will bitcoin be at the EOY?

(Oct 12, 2025 01:35 PM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's hard to put a specific price and time on it like this. But since you asked for a prediction, BTC will be $136,377 on feb 28, 2026

(Nov 17, 2025 04:18 AM)Costanza Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 10-20k.

aahhhh I mean I'd buy it up, but man that would be sad to see

Beherit - November 17, 2025, 1:35 pm

(Nov 17, 2025 10:08 AM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's hard to time the market, but based on trend lines, we could do a "crab walk" up & down numerous times and still hit 140K at start of 2026 without any major anomalies

I randomly said we'll be at $136,377 on February 28, 2026 so you can assume we'll be at 135-137 on the exact day ;)

True. I forgot the exact post but you predicted 90-92k at one point publicly on the forum and it did indeed get down to that point.

Vouch for Hackers BUY HIS EBOOK!!

Hackers - November 17, 2025, 1:44 pm

(Nov 17, 2025 02:35 PM)Beherit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) True. I forgot the exact post but you predicted 90-92k at one point publicly on the forum and it did indeed get down to that point.

Vouch for Hackers BUY HIS EBOOK!!

Lol, I mentioned 112k in January of this year, and then by October I was being accused of AI slop for saying again it would hit 112k & people were upset I wasn't just throating a 120k+ price prediction (to rehit ATH) from others :)

We hovered around 108-115 area and now we're seeing that correction. I do think we could get back over 100 in short-term though, not ruling that out at all. I give BTC a pretty big swing on % up/down, but we're still just following the same TA line as the pump to 20k, and pump to 60k in terms of where support & resistance is.

My predictions are from 2017-2020, but based on 2010-2017 basically

My theory is that there is a a multi-year cycle that will repeat for a high of 380-430K

For this to be true, we could see a pullback to 60k-70kish, followed by a pump to 160K or so

If that happens, that'll be the next main two milestones to prove my theory correct. So far so good overall - Can't time it perfectly and i have been 5-10k off in past, but i hope i'm right even if that means people panic temporarily. The model requires pullback to achieve the growth needed to hit the top.

Lucid - November 17, 2025, 5:35 pm

It's interesting to watch & see how things play out. I appreciate reading everyone's feedback on the subject. I'm not a big investor, but I imagine if it does drop lower than 90k, that could be a good time to buy some. Not a rich guy, but I'll throw $50-100 in now and then when I can, while holding for the long term.

Hackers - November 17, 2025, 5:41 pm

(Nov 17, 2025 06:35 PM)Lucid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's interesting to watch & see how things play out. I appreciate reading everyone's feedback on the subject. I'm not a big investor, but I imagine if it does drop lower than 90k, that could be a good time to buy some. Not a rich guy, but I'll throw $50-100 in now and then when I can, while holding for the long term.

I always tell people to buy at any price if they don't own any BTC

But yes, good thoughts there

Buy in amounts you can afford to lose, and keep doing that

That's what I am doing and it's working and it can scale up or down w/ whatever we make in the future

DCA style is a very safe way to make money and if you have the patience, it can work out in a bear market even if you DCA downwards for a reliable investment that will rebound in the future.

People are afraid to DCA when the market is going down, but if you look at it as "my average buy just got lower", it doesn't feel like you're adding into a loss as much, especially if you're me and believe that this is a very natural and healthy correction in a bullrun that isn't over soon.

Lucid - November 17, 2025, 5:47 pm

(Nov 17, 2025 06:41 PM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I always tell people to buy at any price if they don't own any BTC

But yes, good thoughts there

Buy in amounts you can afford to lose, and keep doing that

That's what I am doing and it's working and it can scale up or down w/ whatever we make in the future

DCA style is a very safe way to make money and if you have the patience, it can work out in a bear market even if you DCA downwards for a reliable investment that will rebound in the future.

People are afraid to DCA when the market is going down, but if you look at it as "my average buy just got lower", it doesn't feel like you're adding into a loss as much, especially if you're me and believe that this is a very natural and healthy correction in a bullrun that isn't over soon.

I've only got to put about $1k into BTC total this year, much less than I have wanted to invest, but bills come first always! Otherwise, things can get real messy real quick.

I have entertained the thought of making a bigger purchase of BTC (something like 2-5k usd) when the timing is right, and if all goes well "flip"/sell the profit when it rebounds in a few months. Idk if I explained that correct, but it sounds good in theory lol!

Hackers - November 17, 2025, 6:02 pm

(Nov 17, 2025 06:47 PM)Lucid Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I've only got to put about $1k into BTC total this year, much less than I have wanted to invest, but bills come first always! Otherwise, things can get real messy real quick.

I have entertained the thought of making a bigger purchase of BTC (something like 2-5k usd) when the timing is right, and if all goes well "flip"/sell the profit when it rebounds in a few months. Idk if I explained that correct, but it sounds good in theory lol!

All I can say is that you know your level of risk tolerance best. That's okay though on the 1K, it's super important to only invest what you can afford to lose, and if you invest money that must go to bills, that's not something that works out even if there are cases where it would've worked out perfectly...

I would only put in the 2-5K if you could still be happy losing it all

If you lost the entire 5K tomorrow, would your life change on the next day?

If so, then that means you can't afford to be without the 5K for more than a few hours, or a day, because the value of the 5K isn't supposed to matter once it's in for a solid investment plan

You lose the cash when you put it in the markets, so just leave it there and at least let it grow

I like to buy for 5-10+ year predictions

Do you have non-crypto investments?

Tyr - November 18, 2025, 7:41 am

86k the way things are rolling right now.