I have wasted 50% of my live savings i have been dcaing alts all year. buying every dip nothing matters. my hair has gone grey and falling out from stress. i feel physically and mentally sick.

Yes iv lost 150k.

I don't know whether to sell or just hold on . Some say yeah ur young but i feel like i'll be dead in a few years from cancer anyway like most people.

Idk what the fuck to do going forward

So the manipulation has worked on you then?

What has fundamentally changed about your crypto projects?

What has changed about crypto adoption?

What has changed about crypto regulation?

& What are the projects you invested in?

If you keep doing something and getting the same results, why not take a step back and reevaluate your decisions? There is nothing wrong with sitting on cash until you figure out the way you're investing and why it's not working.

ADA is great, but it has zero adoption. They have nothing new happening. You can build the greatest project ever but if nobody uses it and there is zero adoption it will fail. ETH and SOL have pros and cons. They are basically Ying and Yang. What one succeeds at the other fails at and vice versa. I recommend getting out of ADA and investing in something related to either of those coins.

My favorite coin currently is ChainLink.

SUI isn't bad, but it was late to the party for this phase of adoption and might fall behind.

The bright side of your situation is that ADA hasn't really fallen much. It's still at .45 cents. So if you swap to another token it's kind of a good play.

Man you should've mostly bought Bitcoin, maybe a smaller percentage of your portfolio (10-15%) into alts would've been fine. If it was Bitcoin I would tell you to hold and wait until it inevitably goes back up, probably by 2028 seeing how the market has been behaving, but it's much trickier with alts as some never recover (there's few exceptions such as ETH and SOL).

I'm convinced we are in a bear market now, so that definitely doesn't help. I would hate giving the wrong advice, as you never really know what to expect with crypto, we could be at $150k in a week, or at $50k, or at the same exact price. But looking at all of the market indicators, the sentiment in general, the charts, BTC hitting $89k.. Things aren't looking good, and this is coming from someone who is usually optimistic about cryptos and the market in general, a "bull".

60K bottom, but I want to buy at 70-90K, preferably at 75K or lower

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6312352>

We're on a bullrun baby, and that's true at 60k , 70k, 80k, 90k , or even 89k and 120k and 160k isn't even ATH in my theory

Fuck the bear market, this is just a healthy correction to accumulate wealth and multiply in a continued bull. You'll see :P

We have only lost a little value

We'll enjoy 160K soon enough I'm sure

i'm sure in a year or two I'll be showing a chart of a crash towards 120k area and talking about how that's not so bad, in a larger chart to 400Kish :)

Price goes up, price goes down. We're no worse off than we were exactly 1 year ago today.

I watched about half a million dollars in unrealized gains evaporate this year, and it sucks, but big picture we're still moving in the right direction. Just another cycle in crypto.

Time value of money is one of the most fundamental concepts of investing; especially for cryptocurrency. I panic sold a marginal amount of variable at a L and took a hit like others but one thing I firmly believe is that downswings such as is is actually very healthy for BTC.

It comes down to a simple concept that you must remember moving forward. You live and you learn from your mistakes. I am also in a similar boat as you albeit for different reasons than crypto; so I hope you feel better sir.

The ability to make intuitive forecasts based on previous market data, company decisions and even so much as their political affiliation is underestimated by many investors, imho.

If you want, you can also write a letter to the Republicans for stalling the bill within the United States for so long of which led to millions needing food and rent assistance.

I love having a "pro crypto," government although I doubt the majority of them even know how cryptocurrency works nor will we see politicians who do for many years. With this said, I loved Trump but he fucked a lot of people and I firmly believe this has more connection to the macroeconomic state of the market.

It'll be rebound but I have NEVER seen it take such a hit during this time of the year; hence why I brought up the importance of TVM in crypto. Reading companies financial statements are also important now more than ever.

Hackers - November 18, 2025, 1:58 pm

Costanza hopefully this helps...

But if you just have 50K in a solid investment over next 5-10, you're most likely going to see a return equal or higher than your 150K loss > perhaps not in ADA, but in something

But this isn't a guarantee, just a thought. Don't stress too much man, maybe losing 150k now will save you from losing 1.5M later.

This is true, much of the value I've accrued over the last 2.5 years has been through building and investing in builders rather than simply hodling tokens. That and high yield defi plays.

YouSquander - November 18, 2025, 7:49 pm

Stop buying alts. It's a desperate move and your odds of picking the right one are incredibly low in reality. Be patient, rotate into Bitcoin before you lose even more, wait, be happy.

I believe in $10m+ BTC at some point, no kidding.

At that price :

0.001 BTC = $10,000

0.01 BTC = $100,000

0.1 BTC = $1,000,000

You get the idea. Invest in the scarcest asset the world has ever known, not some marketing race to suck in as many suckers as possible. I am rooting for you sir.

I believe in seeing $1M+ on BTC, but I don't think we can guarantee a rise to $10M just yet.

There's nothing fundamentally preventing us from swapping to a more obscure Bitcoin knockoff or a completely different protocol with the same principles that led to its rise today.

I'm talking 10, 20, 30, 40 year timespans - nobody should be banking on Bitcoin having a guaranteed success story for that length of time, but I do personally believe it'll still be very strong in 10 years.

Not saying people should put all their money into alts lol

But I think a lot of people here are anti-alt almost too much

Some of the best profits in the last half-decade+ have been from alts, not Bitcoin.

I have been in and out of market for multiple phases for over a decade, but I didn't have the luxury of holding all funds from earlier days.

I'm not saying anyone should hold alts or bank on shitcoins or memecoins, no. But there are projects that realistically will go 2x, 3x, 5x, etc faster than Bitcoin will once we see more growth in crypto in future.

Yeah, Bitcoin has gone up a lot, of course, but nowhere even close to others recently. And I'm not saying people have to buy shitcoins. There have been so many predictable spikes at 2x, 3x, 4x, 5x, 10x, 20x, 30x, 40x, 50x in non-crypto markets & also in crypto while Bitcoin has bounced between $15-125K for a 6-8x return for many. That's great, but not life changing money for most.

I guess what I'm really getting at is this:
> best crypto to hold right now? Bitcoin > best for profiting in short-term? Debatable

I'd rather go 20x on an investment this year and then put 25% into BTC, 25% into stocks, 25% into minerals, and 25% into a vacation.
Then ride that Bitcoin hold for decade(s)

I think some people are putting too much money into Bitcoin without entertaining actual methods to multiply their funds faster, without going into crazy risks, collateral, leverage, etc

Bitcoin is great for many reasons, but by no means is it necessary over the course of our entire lifetimes, nor is it the most scarce resource by the way.

If you want to know scarcity, look into all the components and minerals used for our entire global reliance on tech, networking, and devices. Bitcoin is far less scarce than the materials we need to run the Bitcoin network itself, enjoy our phones, screens, access to modern healthcare, and more.

For that reason, it is far from guaranteed to succeed over a half century, and that's the only time interval I give a fuck about. 50 years is when I'll be old and retired. For all we know we'll be trading real ores to pay a global conglomerate that needs the minerals lol. We really don't know.

I don't think so. It does not get any more grassroots than Bitcoin tbh. People got exposure at higher prices than some, sure, but realistically everyone had the same chance to make unfathomable money from it. Anything else that comes out now will be pre-sold to venture capitalists way before you even know what it is. Sad truth but the reality of the crypto sphere.

I guess that is the difference in mindset here. Trading is gambling and I have a lower risk tolerance than people I suppose. It's not impossible to get into coins early. I bought SOL at $16 in the summer of 2023 and less than a year later I had nearly 20x'd my money, but that was pretty lucky. I had plenty of "smart" (I will say that to be kind lol), telling me I was dumb and I should've bought LINK instead of the marketing bullshit they believed, look how that went. Your safest bet is your smartest bet.

Okay riddle me this

Lets say you're right and BTC continues to rise, and possibly is a threat to USD itself.
Right now the market cap of Bitcoin is $2 Trillion
This year, the US Gov will spend more than $2 Trillion through the D.O.D. alone.

If the US' dominance over global currency is threatened, our budgets can be used to acquire bitcoin marketshare.

In this scenario, Bitcoin immediately becomes less decentralized, with US (and other countries following in suit to compete for %) leading the way

We truly cannot bank on Bitcoin being used in the same way forever.

In this scenario, if the US cannot maintain dominance by buying into Bitcoin, its budgets can be used to destroy it. US could ban Bitcoin transactions if China has a hold on it. This embargo on the use of crypto itself would stunt growth and cause markets to crash almost immediately.

I hope you get the gist of it

The dream of Bitcoin rising in value forever is also the nightmare for the US Gov, and other govs who may not have the means to buy enough in the future. Those countries benefit from transacting in USD & allying with the USA.

On the flipside, the US is aware of this and I believe actively working to make sure it maintains global power over currency & markets, regardless.

We have to really think these things through. If Bitcoin really can hit $10M, do we really believe it will still have the same % of individual owners (many using exchanges too)? It won't. Govs will hoard more than ever just like they do today with foreign currencies, gold, etc.

aaand just like anything that the gov manages or has more control of, the people can eventually vote with their wallets, or really vote against it.

As Bitcoin & crypto use overall rises, so does the importance of controlling it. Its success can also be its death, and its current uses (but not widespread adoption) could end up being why it's successful.

we shall see

(Nov 19, 2025 09:51 PM)nodes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) US could ban Bitcoin transactions if China has a hold on it.

We'd like to see them try. How many times over the years has it been banned in China, India, Russia, whatever. A lot of headlines, impacted nothing. People are funny creatures, you tell them they can't do something, they want to do it more. Already happening now, but there is a not-so-talked-about cold war going on right now in the sense where countries (Germany bag fumlbers excluded) are trying to acquire more coin. More Bitcoin on their balance sheets, higher on world superpower totem pole.

As for your comment about BTC rising forever as a nightmare for the US, they are 100% aware of predictions and trends (which we can assume mean nothing for this thread), fiat currency is still an approved government and I think you and I could both agree on that. Our real money is getting weaker everyday and our spending power decreases as time goes on. We are living in an AI exposed world already, but it's very wonky still. Wait until AGI is out and people really start losing their jobs and most useless people are on UBI. When this happens, this will trigger hyper-deflation in goods and services. Money will flow into scarce assets, the same way it happened in the past in other times of fiat instability. We are getting into schizophrenic territory here on my part I must say, but it's not an impossibility. In a fully dystopian AI world (where we are headed), BTC will become the main layer for AI driven value flows, valued at an even more significant fraction of all global wealth.

Post-scarcity economics. I love the discussion we're having.

SnowreyHS - November 19, 2025, 10:17 pm

AGI will never happen, everything is marketing to monetize the narrative that robots will take over. AI is and always will be a TOOL waiting for our command.

It does not understand you the program receives and gives back results based on algorithms.

As for BTC I believe that when the next halving comes we will see interesting things. As the mining power consumption keeps rising and if the price doesn't do familiar gains...

Could you allocate a budget for longer-term investments instead of crypto? I can provide advice on stocks. I'm sure it will help you recover. I will assist you completely free of charge for the first month, including portfolio building services. We have comprehensive backtesting models, community metrics, software that evaluates company data and includes global decision analysis. If you'd like, send me a PM and I can help you with stocks. I believe investment should be a form of future insurance for everyone, not something that harms people through stress.

We actively offer this service and constantly update our software with more comprehensive techniques. We do not request cash payments or investments from investors. We only inform them in advance how to manage their investments. Our only payment method is commission. We take 20% of what we profit for you as commission.

Diversification is king.

I throw a fuck ton of money around chasing alts, but I'm also taking profits along the way and diversifying outside of crypto or moving funds back into stablecoins for high yield stable plays.

Never go 100% alts and always take profits along the way. Chasing the 25x with your full investment is bonkers, pull half out at 1.5x-2x or something and let the rest ride.

Next run that alts have, keep in mind it'll all come crashing back down eventually, and make sure to prep for that eventual reality.

Diversification means Bitcoin, Gold/Silver, Bonds, and Stocks. At least to me. The only real investment class crypto is Bitcoin. The rest of the market is gambling and speculation about utility which so far hasn't worked out. Every alt which mooned has also crash landed. That's a hard-pass when it comes to long-term investment and growth.

I like the analogy so let's review.

You're getting beaten badly in the corner. It's round 5, you won round 1 and 2 but lost 3 and 4 and in 5 you're getting nailed hard.

This is where you maintain composure because you're not knocked out yet. You won a couple rounds and there is still plenty of rounds left. What you don't do right now is swing for the fences and let your guard down. Instead you hold on and wait for the bell to ring. You keep your guard up and clinch with your opponent. Don't bother with counter-punches.

What you're doing is just wild swings hoping to land something. In most cases that results in you being knocked the F out and match over.

Best strategy. Defense, wait, and regain your composure for a new strategy in a new round. Get your feet under you again and your head straight.

But I assume my words are wasted because it seems like you're punch drunk.

I agree, got no other option . sadly down to much that the rest of my money just trying to get my average lower tbh so maybe when ada runs to 55c i can get out even instead of 65-70. just want to get our near even or just down 15-20% not 60+

I genuinely don't think I've ever witnessed anyone in my 22 years on this earth as shortsighted and plainly retarded as you are.

Just because you lost money on your ADA investment, does not mean that you can't invest into anything else to make up for your losses.

I'm willing to bet that you have still done absolutely 0 worthful research into ADA, other cryptos, market timing etc., yet here you are willing to throw more money into a strange firepit you know nothing about.

Do you need the money soon? Why the fuck are you talking about dumping all of your money into an asset in the span of a couple of months.

36 cents is pretty low . my average is 70 . nearly 50% of what i bought it at . its near bear market lows. doesn't seem stupid? but yes ada is dogshit and useless i know that but here i am balls deep no option.

My average buy on ADA was $0.018. Wouldn't ever dream of buying ADA for more than $0.05. $0.36 is low?

Idk how anyone looks at ADA at $1+ or even $0.30+, and thinks "yeah that's a good buy, I'm going to make money off of this".

Definition of a ghost chain with nothing going for it. ADA community are just bunch of fan bois waiting their turn to make Charles feel important.

OP, Why ADA? I think 80% of people that have posted in this thread have owned it at one point. Why ADA, NOW.. would be a better question. I am an ETH maxi, but if I were to venture out of ETH there are at least 10 other better options than ADA.

You don't need to keep buying ADA to recoup your ADA losses

If you yourself are saying that it's dogshit why the actual fuck do you keep buying it

You don't know what you're talking about, I don't know what I'm talking about, but I want to point out that BTC hit a new ATH literally only 2 months ago. Maybe but absolutely no guarantee on that. The charts are filled with 2018 bull run cryptos that are still stuck at their bottoms. Next bull run most crypto bros look for the latest hyped alt to 100x, not the old ADA which dumped on them.

Stratis for example in 2018 hit $22. Even HF has an award for it. It died, rebranded to STRAX or Xerta. It's now worth $0.01878. I can give you dozens of 2018 examples just like it.

I don't think ADA will be as bad as that but I would get out and I think most other investors will as well which basically kills the value without investors. I haven't seen the integrations to lead me to believe that it has a future. Unlike Sui which I see ecosystem integration in many places as well as new investment.

But I think I get it now. You're mentally committed to this and unfortunately it seems like you're wired to go to zero. Like a gambler who wins and wins but doesn't stop and eventually goes to zero. You simply don't have the ability to quit. I feel bad for you.

Cardano ranks 10 by MCAP but 26th in TVL. It's a literal ghost chain.

Cardano has 26,000 active addresses over the last 24 hours. Your competition have hundreds of thousands or millions of daily active addresses.

Arb and Pol 10x this, Base and Sui 25x this, Sol and Bnb 100x this.
