Thread: A hobby you tried and instantly quit

I tried playing the violin and sounded like a haunted door [BRAND NAME REMOVED].
That was enough.

Have you ever tried something new and quit fast?

RangoWorld - November 30, 2025, 2:51 am

Making videogames. I figured I'd rather stick to playing them than making it.

Quit guitar pretty fast because I have poor hand eye coordination and for some reason the kids in the guitar class were a batch of nasty bullies.

Yall should get into models and kits building so much fun it's practically my life now lol

RiveR29 - December 3, 2025, 11:00 pm

Soccer, Tennis, Volleyball.

Never was interested in those things. Just wanted to please my father.

Turns out I am pretty good at Billiard, Snooker and Darts.

I got into photography, but almost immediately my friends started inviting me to their kids' birthdays, christenings, and even weddings, hoping I'd shoot the events for free.

Eventually, I ended up selling all my gear.

Hahahaha, the door [BRAND NAME REMOVED] analogy cracked me up ?

I tried to learn playing electric guitar years ago but I couldn't get any distinguishable tones out of it, everything sounded the same so I lost interest.

I also failed to learn to speak German, mostly due to the very long words. Absolutely impossible for a non polyglot. My memory is very short. ?

Fris-bee golf. I was so bad they gave me my money back for the equipment haha

Yanix - December 4, 2025, 4:45 am

Tried smoking a cigar with a few officemates...lasted about two puffs before realizing it definitely wasn't for me ?

I try to learning programing

I open an online book then i wake up in another universe :))

So i close it fast this its not for me

BrandPulseDigital - December 4, 2025, 2:18 pm

I wanted to sleep around trying to imitate my friends, but after being with different girls, I realized I was getting emotionally attached. I honestly don't understand how some guys can do it without feelings. So I decided to stop, lol.

Power Washing. Shits over rated

MutatedArm0964 - December 4, 2025, 7:59 pm

The Kalimba. I saw some youtube videos of people playing it and thought it would be easy to learn. In the end I had no patience to learn it. I gave it to my little brother after I quit.

Violin.

Bought an electric violin and haven't touched it since the day it came hahahahah

PS: It's been 3 years.

Being nice to people

ava_luv - December 16, 2025, 4:42 pm

tried learning chinese while doing spanish 3 in highschool

i kept on mixing up stuff so i ended up not going through with chinese i still do know a bit tho.
