Thread: Stock analysis for Apple Inc. \(AAPL\) \(For Next Week\)

SkilledMaster - December 5, 2025, 9:41 am

I spent a couple of hours analyzing Apple Inc. stocks, which are currently around $278. I also reviewed other analyses, and it's likely to rise to $283-284 on Thursday or Friday next week.

(Remember, investing always carries risk; invest with this in mind. This analysis is not investment advice. Also, the fate of the analysis can be changed by a momentary decision taken by the company, so do not forget to follow the company's announcements and news.)

Why do you think it's going to rise?

After the last price fall and the moderate rise for the next week, a fall is likely again

You base this on any real info?

I had my software analyze the company's performance over the past three years using verified financial sources, and also included additional factors like revenue and community engagement. It generated a weekly chart for me, indicating a moderate upward trend that would gain momentum towards the end of the week (for this week only).
