Did you know that Target (yes, the retail store!) operates two super advanced forensics labs, and that they closely work with the police and other agencies?

Here's an article:

Didn't know this, but also doesn't surprise me.

All sorts of random companies have random things that you don't think they would have.

It's like where stuff gets made, my favorite cheese cake is imported from Germany then rebranded to a local value brand.

Aldi? Germany makes some great food products. I traveled over there and everything is very cheap, and of great quality.
