Thread: is silent mining worth it on a botnet?

duecell9 - December 12, 2025, 7:33 am

Im making this thread because i wanted to start my own silent mining operation. and i wanted to ask if this is still viable in current market conditions or should i start another type of botnet. I would love to hear from current botnet owners and take advice from them. Also making this thread for newer newbies that might have the same thought mining is profit by volume, and being able to mine on profitable algos. Right now pearlhash is 2x more profitable than any other coin for gpu. CPU is volume, the more devices you have the more you make (obviously)

You need to think about stealth and maintaining system access undetected. It can make good money but it won't be the only income, logs, proxy etc
