solidkane - December 14, 2025, 11:53 pm

Hello everyone,

i have a Darkvision license. Thing is someone got this for me so i don't have access to email of delivery or anything. I want the latest version of the Darkvision. Owner referred me to the email used during purchase and thats not an option.

Thank you @Astaroth for the response. Support actually did respond timely. And as for you @Terry A. Davis, i strongly believe you cant know better than owner of the software. I followed instructions and got my copy back. You must be used to warez/piracy and think everyone is like you. Stop projecting. Duh. And yo everyone that responded positively, i appreciate.

I just got the latest version through the update button. But here is a quote from the sales thread:

"If your client is recent, you should be able to click the update button to fetch it.

If your client is a bit older, you might see a different message. The solution is to send your activation key to the codev at tooldev@tutamail.com and request the temporary URL; then you will be able to fetch the latest update."

I hope this will help. ?

Thanks for this information. Sad thing i don't have any version available. I lost all files to a hard drive crash. Looking for a new download.

I'm in the same situation, and even with the email address it doesn't work because the link provided is dead, I gave up....

If seller is telling you something, then you're basically asking for Warez / Piracy, which we don't do here.

I suspect you're going to be buying a new copy, and that's all there is to it.
