Thread: [The Automated Edge: Full-Time Blackjack Mentorship \[WorldWide\]\[No Experience\]](#)

SIM-4791795 - December 15, 2025, 4:40 am

I'll start with this: I love gambling. I hate losing. Gambling is a thrill—a ride of the craziest highs and lows. It definitely alters your reality when you win so much so fast, and lose so much even faster. I've been lucky to walk away break-even after winning large, but I've also seen the other side: gambling with an edge.

I'm also lazy. I didn't want to put in hundreds of hours to memorize basic strategy or maintain a perfect mental count. So I asked: what if this was all automated? What if the table with the exact True Count and the exact play decision was just given to you? What if your only jobs were to preserve your bankroll, stay accountable, and execute precisely—not gamble?

That "what if" is now the system.

What This Is: Your Role as an Operator

This is not a gambling course. It's an operations manual for a specialized, technology-driven business.

The Automation: Proprietary software acts as your 24/7 scout and strategist. It monitors tables, calculates the True Count in real-time, and tells you exactly when to enter, how much to bet, and every action to take (Hit, Stand, Double, Split).

Your Mission: You are an executor. Your psychology is the final, most important component. You must follow the system's commands with robotic discipline, manage your capital without emotion, and grind through the inevitable downswings without deviation.

The Non-Negotiable Requirements

This path has a high barrier to entry by design, ensuring only the serious succeed.

Minimum Risk Capital & Bankroll Strategy: The absolute minimum to start is $10,000. Here's why this is non-negotiable: Real professional card counters who bet aggressively (2x, 3x, 4x their bet with the count) need a 1000-unit bankroll to survive the wild volatility they create. Our strategy is different. We use a flat bet, which is far less volatile. You need a 300-unit bankroll, ideally 400-500 units. A $10,000 bankroll with a $25 base bet gives you 400 units. This is sized so that a 100-unit losing swing—which will absolutely happen—doesn't make you question the system. The $10k minimum is required so you can emotionally withstand what's inevitable, trusting that the math will pull you out on top.

Robotic Discipline: You must surrender all gut feelings. We act only on the strongest signals. The system's edge is precise but requires patience.

A Full-Time Grind: This is an 8-hour-a-day job. You are "on shift" to execute. The software finds the rare, high-quality opportunities; you maximize them.

Operational Setup: You'll need the specific software, ancillary tools, and my direct mentorship to tie it all together.

The Math: The 2% Edge at TC 4+

This is the core of our precision strategy. We do not chase small edges. The software waits for the strongest verified player advantage and directs you to it.

The Play Signal: We only act when the True Count (TC) is +4 or higher. This threshold delivers a clear approximately 2% player edge.

The Bet & Bankroll Rule: A disciplined flat bet during these windows. Your bankroll must be your base bet multiplied by 300 units. This is the essential foundation that allows you to withstand the inevitable variance and downswings without emotional disruption.

The following table shows the potential scale of this system. These are long-term estimates, projecting what a sustained 2% edge can deliver if you achieve a target of 100 advantaged hands per hour. Your actual results will vary based on the frequency of high-count windows and your execution.

Base Bet	Required Bankroll	Est. Hourly EV	Est. Daily EV (8hrs)	Est. Monthly EV (20 days)
$10	$3,000	$20.00	$160.00	$3,200.00
$25	$7,500	$50.00	$400.00	$8,000.00
$50	$15,000	$100.00	$800.00	$16,000.00
$100	$30,000	$200.00	$1,600.00	$32,000.00

The Critical Reality Check

These figures are mathematical expectations, not guarantees. The "100 hands per hour at TC 4+" is a target based on optimal system performance. The real challenge, and the purpose of our entire operation, is maximizing your hands during these rare, high-quality windows. You will have periods of waiting and periods of intense execution. The structured bankroll is what allows you to persist through variance so the 2% edge can work in your favor over time.

Terms & Final Acknowledgement

Full transparency: I used ChatGPT to help craft and structure this pitch. More importantly, you must understand that this involves real-money gambling. Having an edge does not eliminate variance, losing streaks, or the psychological pressure that comes with them. Your success ultimately depends on your risk tolerance and emotional intelligence. If you are prone to tilt, anger, or making emotional decisions, I guarantee this is not for you. This is exclusively for the individual who has their emotions in check and can execute a plan with zero deviation, regardless of short-term results. All mentorship sales are final with no refunds.

The Final Truth

The math doesn't lie, but human nature does.

I do this full time and make $5-10k/week off $100k bank roll depending on the swing. Proof of earnings can be easily falsified. You can fact check my statements and do your own research. Middleman can hold funds until you make your money back.

So with 10k bankroll is it possible to "easily" make 2k/month?

If you use a software, you can't automate the human interaction too? Using OCR or similar.

Thanks.

Earnings can only be falsified to a certain extent. If you screen record your earnings directly from the website, and show the screen refreshing directly from the browser and website, this would make falsifying earnings much more difficult. If you can show some good proof of earnings in this fashion, I would be interested in investing in your full time blackjack method. I would like to see the $5-10k a week that you say you're pulling from this, also the image you have attached to the thread is not loading for some reason, it shows as this [Image: 661dda2a2933f6eac0833a704bda7b18.png]

I myself am an advantaged player as well. I've been doing this for about 2 years. Been backed off few local spots have had to travel to spots etc. I am willing to leave a vouch copy if you want someone who knows about this stuff to actually leave a review on it. No bankroll problems or anything here lol. I was simply just browsing and saw a product that actually peaked my interest, but I'm fairly confident I won't learn anything of any potential value.... or EV if you wanna get fancy and punny with it :)

I'll expand further here.

You used this as an example

$10 $3,000 $20.00 $160.00 $3,200.00

But what you failed to include was RoR (risk of ruin) a very important figure in counting to know. You made no mention of what game rules these examples used i.e hands per hour, deck penetration, double after split, re split access , late surrender which will also have an impact on your EV and AV as calculated. You may want to clarify this. Anyone who has done a tiny bit of researching on counting will be able to pick this flaw out in your thread

Your site credentials aren't reputable enough for a vouch copy.

You're right about risk of ruin, this is why I recommend a 300 unit minimum. My strategy doesn't involve increasing bet size by true count. There is no need to mention game rules when it's irrelevant to most. This isn't an open discussion about card counting, it's straight to the point. The end user doesn't need to have any prior knowledge. Just follow every signal the program shows you to. You don't need to think or make hard decisions. Just follow the direction of the automated bot.
