Sharing your political views with others doesnt change anything

Terry A. Davis - December 16, 2025, 12:10 pm

Shock horror.

You can share, you can scream, you can converse, communication is a two-way street, so if you're not prepared to put work in, or they're not, then yeah of course it won't change anything.

This is utterly false.

Exchanging political views with others may have an impact on them, causing them to change stands in polital matters. Haven't you heard about "swinging opinions". ?

You should look into National Socialism because people from where you're from are better, and you should have the right to good social services.

See why you think it's stupid to say "utterly false" now? You can't ever discount something entirely because not everyone thinks the same commonsense way you do, and it's why I throw up when I hear politicians say "commonsense decisions" - Because it means that to them.

You aren't paying attention to what I am saying, and to keep SRPP out of this place, I will stop.

A majority of people once they have their stance won't change it, but there are many people that are on the fence and need more information to form an opinion.

People spend more time worrying about someone else's life than their own. Stop caring about which celebrity did what, who is trending on social media, etc. Invest that time with yourself and you'll be much happier.

European Pride brother.

If it ain't white, it ain't right.

What a fucking joke. Money making prick.

National Socialism is the way, keep your people in your arbitrary borders and have them slave away.

There is always a fucking 'president'.

If you bullshit with confidence. People with gobble that up. People will think they are smart enough to notice and call the bullshit. But they really aren't

I feel like you're not the Edward Norton skinhead but somehow are at the same time, I want to find a clever way to put 1488 in this but I can't be fucked. Let's just pretend the raging homosexual known as me is a Nazi... Wait I said National Socialist, I get the irony of me saying that since the Nazis ruined it, but like c'mon, it doesn't instantly mean I'm a nazi, have you seen my nose?

On the other point, I am a smidge lost, feels like some jaded remark about an Orange Man, but I ain't no yank so I'm not sure what you're saying aside from Trump's shenanigans.
