Thread: How can I ignore certain threads on my feed?

jcole - December 20, 2025, 1:16 pm

Since some recent changes with the bumping there are certain users who are bumping threads multiple times an hour. One user has over 800 bumps in 24 hours. When I click 'New Posts' that is all that floods my feed. I don't want to ignore the users because I have no problems with them, but I do not want to see a wave of their threads on my feed.

I don't think it's fair to say that all posts are just bumps.
Or do you mean they're literally doing all of that in the marketplace?

Regardless you could probably bring it to staff's attention. I doubt Omni will deal with BS if people are abusing the new system.

A screenshot might help me figure out a potential solution.

Thanks, sending to you privately

Oh, you're talking about Moookie's Stanley Bumps.

Assume you're using "New Posts" button for the "feed"?

Omniscient - December 20, 2025, 1:46 pm

Issue resolved. Stanley as Last Poster will no longer show in the New Posts query.
