That definitely shouldn't be happening until the winners provide confirmation here that they actually got what they were supposed to. As of now it seems they have not so it's important for them to be able to post on here expressing such. In the meantime, a member or 2 not realizing the giveaway ended and trying to enter still is hardly a big deal. Making sure the giveaway is legitimate and actually getting paid out is what matters most.

This isn't acceptable. You need to say who the three members are alerting them to their wins by putting @ on either side of their user names to alert them.

You need to NAME them and they need to tell us they got paid.

Has everyone received their money? If not I really don't know why people think it's worth the risk of account closure to get some bytes and popularity that you will lose when/if your account gets closed. Meaning the OP obviously not who I quoted.

No, apparently you didn't. Why would you [allegedly] scam bytes and popularity rep that you won't even have once your account is closed?

This really is no kind of victory for any of you doing this. Perhaps we need a sticky about how you will be closed, but I suppose idiots wouldn't read it anyway.

I mean maybe this member is negotiating with Omni right now, and so isn't closed, or else Omni is just busy and tomorrow I know he's busy, so might have to wait a few more days for justice. I will be flying out of the city tomorrow so won't be here much either.

Good luck to the winners. Here's hoping the guy keeps his promises. I really hope all these idiots don't result in us losing member contests.

Did he think by just posting the winning numbers that he'd get away with no one noticing no one got paid? This is so stupid. I'd laugh but I don't want to be insensitive to the winners.
