I am 2 months late, but this is a beautiful game. I have months/(possibly)years (played since 2015) in League of Legends. 2,500 hour in PUBG.

ARC Raiders on console is too bright, imo...

If your computer hardware supports it - muah.

The stress of talking to people and determining/persuading for your survival is rewarding. The crafting, buying and absolute 'no pay to win' is extremely refreshing for a $40 game, imo.

hmu if you play arc, I need a 3 man squad that's cool. For real.

Is it really a good game?

plops - January 7, 2026, 8:56 pm

If you like tps, se, pve... then yes. Its okay.

You might get a chat as well.

I'm surprise you're saying it's too bright on for you. I have seen a lot of people complaining about how hard it is to see at night.

If I read that right, be a classic jeet and pick up gamma.

I've seen many players playing it recently, and honestly it's a really great game... maybe a bit similar to CoD compared to PUBG.

K4RM4 - January 12, 2026, 6:34 am

I've really enjoyed it.

Haven't bought the game yet but it looks like a fun one. Lots of social media clips on this game right now

Panagiota - January 12, 2026, 10:11 am

I have heard that it has turned into a pvp rather than a pvpve because most players are jerks

You aren't wrong but now with P-V-P penalties(killing to many raiders puts you in raider killers/high aggro lobbies) put in place the game has gotten a bit more peaceful but that doesn't mean you are in the clear from toxic players. People have acknowledged the system and you can be good for x amount of games and get put in peaceful lobbies where you are the TOP DAWG if you wanna get kills. But with all that being said it's still an extremely fun game that you can sink countless hours into while forgetting you have work in a few hours!

Arc Raiders Game Score:8/10

Keep playing your mobile games, none cares about that.

I don't understand what your reply has to do with what I wrote... but I'll pretend I'm interested, as if you and your opinion have any value.

"Oh okay, I'll go play mobile games, waa waa."

Be happy—I've added value to you and your replies ??

I really like it, definitely try it out.

DemonAsylum - January 30, 2026, 1:04 pm

I was pretty close to picking this up and giving it a try. I had multiple friends that got it and I really only wanted to grab it if they were going to keep playing it for a while. I gave it a week, maybe closer to 2, and they all stopped playing. Pretty much what I expected, but that's nothing against the game honestly. I know they enjoyed their time with it. I've enjoyed watching a handful of streams for it as well. Always cool to see a game breakout and do so well like this has.

I have recently been playing this game through the GeForceNOW service where you can play games streamed from a gaming rig if you don't have a gaming PC. I found it odd because I kept playing even though I was awful at it which I couldn't make sense of why I continued to play. I do seem to enjoy it. There is a hilarious streamer who plays it named Mr.BurntPeanut. he uses Vtube stuff to make himself look like a peanut he's great for a laugh. It's definitely worth a try. I had to try it after all the hype I had been seeing.

Cool one but it will surely die out as time goes.

Does GeForceNOW give you cpu/gpu equivalent? You are playing as a console user on a computer? You must require a hardline and a close server? You stream a third party server? Genuinely curious about this one.

Stupid IMO. The people that build computers will find out how to safely max hardware.

I do have a 1060 super on the shelf that is still kicking. Maybe that's worth $1,200.....

i just started playing this game myself, and man let me tell you im hooked!!!
