Thank you very much for this opportunity and for your generosity in hosting a contest like this for non-upgraded members. Below is my entry for the contest.

What you plan to contribute to Hackforums :

I plan to be an active and valuable member of this great community by contributing knowledge, support and responsible engagement across different section of the forum. My goal is not to learn only from the community also to give back in a meaningful ways that help other member grows as well and be better.

One of my main contributions will be creating clear beginner friendly guides and tutorials in the hacking section of the forum and other sections as well that I'm knowledge able in, This will focus on explaining concepts step by step, especially for newcomers who may find certain technical topics confusing. I intent to cover areas such as basic cybersecurity concepts, online privacy, safe practices, general tech knowledge and problem solving approaches. Where possible I will break down complex ideas into simple language and practical examples so that members at different skill levels can benefit.

Beyond guides and tutorials, I intend to contribute by engaging in discussion, sharing insight and learning from more experienced members on the forum. I value ethical behavior and responsible use of knowledge, so my contribution will always align with the forum rules and community standards and I also plan to ask thoughtful questions that can spark useful discussion and collective learning Conclusion: Overall, my contribution to HackForums will focus on sharing knowledge, helping others , learning continually and maintaining integrity. I aim to become a trusted and positive member who adds value to the community over time.

Thank You.

Hello, intend to contribute by providing honest, detailed reviews of marketplace services. Many members are wary of scams; by performing 'vouch' tests and writing transparent reports on service quality, I can help maintain the integrity of the HF marketplace and protect our community's funds

Goldenboi - January 10, 2026, 9:30 am

My Entry for the giveaway, I have been around for a month now and I have meet some really nice people on here , I mostly hang around the Convo side of the forum where I met really chilled people 7 php CL1B Beherit and more . I view Hackforum not just a platform but as a pivotal crossroads for knowledge, innovation, and collaboration.

I intend to contribute my knowledge in python automation and OSINT methodologies, I plan to author a series of clean and well documented guides like releasing my one of my current project I'm on OSINT data aggregator with python covering the ethical use.

Also I intend to offer small-batch , custom items Python scripting services in the marketplace focusing on utility (discord bot integration for community management, custom data parsers)

xin zhao - January 10, 2026, 3:53 pm

I contribute to HackForums because I enjoy learning how systems actually work under the hood. The community has experienced people, good discussions, and practical knowledge that helps me grow technically and think more critically about security.\

Hello there sirs' ..

Thank you for hosting this contest and for giving back to HF community ..

To be honest sir , I'm just here to learn and to socialize actually ..

This is the first community I feel comfortable with .. I made a lot of friends here , always positive towards others ..

My work and specialty as a Bio-medical , allows me to give advice on stuff maybe this community finds boring or not needed or they prefer to take the advice of a professional in there region / area ..

As a Cyber-sec Student , there is always something new to learn here in the Forums ..

As I said , I don't have much to offer , I may not deserve it but its worth trying , a bit in a tight situation financially meanwhile , would love a perma upgrade to L33t , I'm just being honest and speaking out my mind !!

roselopez - January 12, 2026, 6:54 pm

I review, rate and suggest features for product sold here.

SocialSolutions - January 12, 2026, 9:41 pm

thanks for hosting gw . im currently new user so i will just explore the forum for some time. i will surely post some hq thread in upcoming time

? What I Plan to Contribute:

Practical, Step-by-Step Technical Guides

I'll write clear, beginner-to-advanced tutorials on tools and services many of us use but often hit roadblocks with—like ngrok, tunneling, port forwarding, and sandboxed lab setups.

Example guide: "How to Legally Set Up a Secure Testing Tunnel Without Card Verification Issues"

I'll include troubleshooting, free alternatives, and best practices to keep things safe and ethical.

Security Fundamentals Series

I want to help newcomers avoid common pitfalls—especially around RATs, malware analysis, and remote tools—by publishing a short series on:

Setting up isolated test environments (VM, Docker, VPNs)

Understanding what's legal vs. illegal in security research

Recognizing and avoiding sketchy tools/malware in disguise

Marketplace Integrity & Safety Tips

As someone who values trust in trading/buying services, I'll contribute to the Marketplace section by:

Sharing red flags to watch for in service listings

Posting safe transaction practices

Offering to mediate or advise in dispute situations (where appropriate)

One-on-One Help for New Members

I'll make myself available in relevant subforums to answer questions about networking, tool configuration, and safe testing methodologies—especially for those just starting out in ethical hacking.

? Positive Community Idea:

I propose a “Monthly Safe-Lab Challenge”—a structured, legal CTF-style activity where members can practice skills like reconnaissance, tunneling, and forensics in a controlled, educational setting. This would encourage learning, collaboration, and ethical habits, all while building reputation and skill.

? Why This Matters:

I've seen too many newcomers jump into tools without understanding the risks—to themselves and others. With L33T status, I'd have better reach and credibility to promote responsible, legal, and educational content that lifts the community up instead of tearing it down.

Thanks for the opportunity—and good luck to all entering.

Let's keep HF smart, safe, and strong.

Hola, muchas gracias por brindar un espacio. Me proyecto contribuyendo a la comunidad de hackforum desde un punto educativo, soy nuevo aqui, pero llevo tiempo en el mundo... y tambien espero seguir siempre aprendiendo, sea - o +, convertirlo en experiencia, y aplicarlo en un futuro... como enseñanza o aprendizaje, saludos! Nice helping people like this mate, +10 Pop from me ??

techpacket - January 23, 2026, 10:21 pm

I would like to use a L33T upgrade to contribute consistently and positively to the Hackforums community through legitimate and rule-compliant IT-related work and knowledge sharing.

My main plan is to actively participate in the marketplace by offering ethical IT services, such as basic technical assistance, automation help, troubleshooting, and productivity-related solutions. Previously, normal members were able to contribute more freely, but the upgrade requirement currently limits my ability to offer services and engage fully.

In addition to services, I also plan to:

Share beginner-friendly guides and tutorials to help new members understand IT tools and concepts

Assist other users by answering questions and providing clear, practical solutions

Stay active in discussions and contribute with constructive and helpful feedback

I am not here for short-term benefits. My goal is to build a long-term, trustworthy presence by being consistent, respectful, and genuinely helpful to others. Receiving this upgrade would allow me to unlock more opportunities to contribute, improve myself, and add real value to the community.

Thank you for hosting this giveaway and for giving members an opportunity like this. It truly encourages positive participation and motivates users to contribute more actively. I really appreciate your generosity and effort.

Good luck to everyone

PISTONZ - January 23, 2026, 11:37 pm

Thank you for this opportunities.

This is my entry;

What you plan to contribute to Hackforums

- I'm gonna more being active on some Hacking and Computer stuff section, to shares some Guides and Tutorial, such as how to setup and installing shares tools from github, etc.

- Will be actives on Marketplace and following all the HF rules here.

- My another interest are gambling sports bet, so I'm going being more active to discussion on proper section.

OkbS - January 24, 2026, 11:24 am

I plan to contribute mainly through marketplace activity, selling clean, well-verified leads with clear info, proof.

Cyber Products - January 25, 2026, 1:22 am

Sadly, the only winners who are worth the L33T giveaway.

i'll keep this thread open and welcome to any new member who think he's worth a l33t and i will upgrade him.
