Yes, he reached out to me, and while we can take the account down for him.. his goal was to try and obtain the username after the account was banned. Rather than just taking the job, banning the account, and allowing him to figure out on his own that the username won't be available for use after we take down the account.. I was fully transparent with him that in the end, the username still wouldn't be available for him.. and so it didn't really make sense banning the account.

I definitely appreciate the referral for the job nonetheless. Artisan
