

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Definition of Insanity by Einstein

Hackers - February 28, 2026, 7:31 am

Doing the same thing over and over, expecting different results... That's insane!

This thread is not a music or AI thread, but on topic to this discussion... I made an AI song the other night (scheduled for release today) called Repetitive Perpetual Motion that feels related to this thread so I'll share now.

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=j1ULi7jIDAQ>]

This song is intended to really be repetitive and invoke feelings of anxiety of annoyance. It's called Repetitive Perpetual Motion because we must go on & forwards regardless, even if we repeat the past.

DAL-SHA - February 28, 2026, 7:39 am

He is 100% right !

Its an act of madness I must add !

Something should be done in the process / execution to at least affect or change the outcome !

Jamika - February 28, 2026, 11:16 am

(Feb 28, 2026 08:31 AM)hackers Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Doing the same thing over and over, expecting different results... That's insane!

This thread is not a music or AI thread, but on topic to this discussion... I made an AI song the other night (scheduled for release today) called Repetitive Perpetual Motion that feels related to this thread so I'll share now.

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=j1ULi7jIDAQ>]

This song is intended to really be repetitive and invoke feelings of anxiety of annoyance. It's called Repetitive Perpetual Motion because we must go on & forwards regardless, even if we repeat the past.

My manager was the first one to say this, and he actually used to say it a lot: if you keep doing the same thing every time and expect different results, you're reaching a high level of stupidity.

JoshAllen - February 28, 2026, 11:30 am

(Feb 28, 2026 08:31 AM)hackers Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Doing the same thing over and over, expecting different results... That's insane!

I agree and think many people still struggle with this on a daily basis.