

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Proxie services

Derrick420 - March 2, 2026, 6:15 pm

Hey guys new to proxies and what not, ive been doing some digging around and came across foxyproxy.

What are you guys doing to use said found proxies or proxy lists?
Is foxyproxy (the chrome extension) alright to use? or should i be setting it up through the windows network configuration?

6 - March 2, 2026, 6:57 pm

(Mar 2, 2026 07:15 PM)Derrick420 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hey guys new to proxies and what not, ive been doing some digging around and came across foxyproxy.

What are you guys doing to use said found proxies or proxy lists?
Is foxyproxy (the chrome extension) alright to use? or should i be setting it up through the windows network configuration?
Should use an antidetect browser such as adspower

Guardino - March 3, 2026, 7:08 am

Antidetect browser or through a program like proxifier.

ZinyNet - March 23, 2026, 7:00 pm

Foxyproxy is just a tunneling extension... doesnt like socks5
all else works just fine... you also have Proxifier...

GFOX - March 23, 2026, 7:14 pm

New easy to use solution out for this with GhostFox.

Let's you run proxys and wireguard tunnels ITB. Each tab can use a unique user agent and connection.

vetbesim - March 23, 2026, 7:18 pm

i use foxy proxy to bypass some website geo location blocks, and to slightly hide my identity. it is not bad at all, if you got a big proxy list it has the import feature where you can import a bunch of proxies instead of having to manually put each one.

but foxyproxy is only for browser.

PappyProxy - April 14, 2026, 8:48 pm

If you collect secure proxies these are very useful for security and pen testing!!