Thread: Whats Your Phobia?

R5N3T - March 2, 2026, 6:15 pm

Hello, today I'm bored at work so I decided to make this post.
I'm curious, do you guys have any phobias? Like being afraid of certain animals, heights, or anything else?

Honestly, it's kind of embarrassing, but I'm afraid of rats... If I see one of those, I get really scared ?

PacketPilot - March 2, 2026, 7:20 pm

For me, I'd say it's probably heights. I'm fine until I look down... then my legs suddenly forget how to function ?

They don't shake... they just prepare for emergency sprint mode ?

Yeah yeah, I'm hilarious, I know

Well for me it is something pretty mundane. I am simply afraid of being forgotten.
Which correlates to my increasing megalomania, just to make an impact on this world, and to leave a mark that I was once here.
Im just glad my megalomania is not the evil type, I just want to help enough people to be remembered.

Heights. Def heights. Iv had guns pointed at my face point plank and just stood there but climbing a ladder I'm like wtf I hate this. Once I'm on the roof of a 1 story house i get vertigo.

hxmokaa - March 2, 2026, 10:20 pm

I wouldn't say it's extreme, but I've always had a bit of a fear of deep water. Not swimming pools more like oceans or dark lakes where you can't see what's under you I think it's the unknown factor that makes it uncomfortable

What do you think causes most phobias bad experiences or just imagination?

Sodan42 - March 2, 2026, 10:41 pm

I am a man of 1000 phobias. Let me pull one out of the hat....

Phobia #323: My incapacitating fear of heights.

Check out the video on YT of:

"USS Akron disaster".

I look away every time the air ship takes off with people hanging on the rope. OMG why didn't they let go in time. ?

I swear I just found out about this phobia, but luckily it's not the evil kind. It would be dangerous if someone wanted to be remembered for doing bad things. And thank goodness you're not like that.

I'm the same. When I see a snake, I'm totally calm and can still think clearly, but when I see a rat, I start shaking

I get what you mean... it's like there's something terrifying lurking at the bottom, haha

Maybe this could also be called being more of a "coward," lmao... I'm just joking, bro, sorry

Yeah, the darkness and tightness would definitely make you feel like you can't breathe

Luckily, they're not in the city, so there's nothing for you to be afraid of, bro, hehe

CrusadersX - March 3, 2026, 4:18 am

@OP if your phobia is of rats. Does that mean hamsters scare you too?

Thats right, hamster too.. Even rabbits, I'm scared of them too... because they're kind of like rats. I don't know why, but I always make sure to avoid them

I have a bit of trypophobia—it's not severe, but seeing those images does make me feel uncomfortable.

DAL-SHA - April 5, 2026, 6:32 am

Loneliness , its not something I'm afraid off , but its something I strive everyday to avoid and I work to not be alone for the rest of my human life
