Thread: By what date will Bitcoin reach 350K?

Prediction time boys and girls. By what month/year will Bitcoin reach 350K?

I will ponder this and let you know what I think soon. I frequently say the next big test is at 160K, with the next ATH cycle after that hitting 360-430K, with a good chance it can creep higher. 360-430 is where I am targeting to take profit.

If we make some huge assumptions and assume the CMC Crypto Fear and Greed Index can indicate future prices, we would be looking at somewhere around late 2027 to early 2028 for a $350K peak during the next extreme greed phase.

This roughly aligns with the popular "4-year halving cycle" narrative in crypto (the next Bitcoin halving after 2024 would be about 2028).

But remember, past performance is not an indicator of future returns.

Hopefully BTC can really reach your target

I'm not sure. It's way far off from current point. Hard to make an even educated guess.

Roughly I'd say somewhere around 2030

Everyone was expecting BTC to hit $150k when it was at 125k. Next run i think it'll just hit from 175-250k in 2028 (depending how things are. Especially with US influence and elections).

$350k sounds more plausible in 2034.

Starting to wonder, at least today, if the crypto market is doomed because of a New World Order. If true Globalism comes into effect, digital IDs, Age-Verifications, and CBDC's....then how will a free market work?

They are talking about having ID verification on OS's including Linux. If you can't be anonymous on your device, how can crypto survive that?

I have some thinking to do.

This is my exact thought also. A lot of the regulatory momentum right now is definitely moving toward tighter identity restrictions. And the whole situation with System 76 in California on these OS age checks got me a bit frustrated, because the community rallied against them for saying that they would comply. They can't afford to lose that market, and we're blaming the company. I could only wish that all of the distros would rally up together and say they refuse to offer support to California, and really set a precedent going forward.

On crypto, I feel a lot of the technologies will eventually be co-opted to a point of mass adoption, but it won't be on the infrastructure that we would like—one that focuses on security, privacy, and the individual's rights.

But with this rise in agents and the reimagining of what labor will look like in the future, it's pretty much a given that the blockchain will be the main place for managing transactions.

It feels extremely difficult to really predict. I really thought we were going to see it rally even higher than $125K.

I am, however, extremely bullish on gold in these next couple of months and years. I think it's really only up from here for the perceivable future.

When we look at things like debt, crises, I mean, the list goes on.

miriochaser - March 7, 2026, 1:23 pm around 2030 is my prediction, we will need some time for people to forget how manipulated this place is, before they fall for it again! haha But one thing I am quity convinced it will happen is us seeing BTC at 500 plus.

March of 2031

Extremely wishful thinking, in my opinion. I think we'd be fortunate to hit $200k - $225k by 2028.

There are "Emotional Levels" to bitcoin For example getting to $150k, $175, and finally $200k. Those incremental Values/Jumps can stay at those levels for weeks and months before either Jumping to the next High or even dipping 20+% before getting back to it's previous ATH. 24 Months go by quick.

Which is why I started out with "If we make some huge assumptions".

It's not realistic to precisely pinpoint when BTC will be 350K, otherwise people will leverage the shit out of that information.

Hackers - March 17, 2026, 10:15 am

I love the assumptions, anti-assumptions, and general comments. I agree that it is near impossible to pinpoint an exact date for $350K but I think we could potentially outline what it would take to hit 350K by a certain quarter/year. Even if we're off by 6 months, that's still a win in my opinion.

RealHODLER - March 17, 2026, 1:49 pm

Sooner than you think. Hold Bitcoin and be a good boy.

???? - March 21, 2026, 3:03 pm

More likely heading to 30k first in my opinion, gonna buy some if it does go to that level and go from there. But surely it needs time to recover. ^^

waraktis - March 22, 2026, 11:39 am

Why do u think there will be electricity for bitcoin to reach such numbers ?

avielderich - March 23, 2026, 3:37 pm

Next bull run in 2029

MoneyMakes.Me - April 12, 2026, 7:29 am

I believe BTC will hit $350k by 2032/2033 or sooner with a strong catalyst

Edmond Dantes - April 13, 2026, 1:52 am

I think by 2030 we can realistically see BTC at over 250k $
