Thread: XMR via DEX \(No P2P\) Best rates? \(Funds on Binance\)

PacketViper - March 15, 2026, 1:17 am

Hey guys,

I'm looking to swap some assets into XMR and need some guidance on where to get the best rates currently.

Background:

I have a few assets sitting on Binance (mainly USDT/ETH), but as we all know, Binance delisted XMR, so I can't withdraw directly. I need to move these funds off the CEX and swap them for Monero.

Requirements:

- Not looking for P2P / direct trades with users. (No offense, I just want to keep this simple with an automated swap).
- Prefer to off-ramp via a DEX or a reliable instant swap service.
- I don't mind if the route involves swapping ETH/USDT to something like BTC first, and then using that to get XMR (e.g., via THORChain or similar protocols).

The Ask:

For those of you who buy XMR regularly:

1. What are you using these days that has deep liquidity and decent rates?
2. Is it better to swap on-chain (e.g., ETH -> XMR via a DEX) or use a centralized/no-KYC swap service like ChangeNow, StealthEX, etc.?
3. If you have a referral code or specific route that minimizes slippage, feel free to DM me.

Thanks in advance.

HF has a contract system and many trusted exchangers, you may use the currency exchange forum to do this trade.

I used to use Kraken. If you got the monthly subscription, you get $10k a month in no fees trading. It only costed $4.99. Too bad my account got closed, but it was totally worth it.

I don't think otherwise you'll find a good DEX/CEX with a low fee. They're all kind of costly to exchange unfortunately. Most of them are usually 0.1-0.7%

Just use Houdini Swap. It has XMR pairs.

If you want BTC, you can also try Bisq. It's a decentralized trading system. I've done some testing, it works okay. A bit weird but it's functional. It's very private.

How much volume are you trying to move?

Thanks for all your replies!

I personally tried Houdini Swap and it works.
