Harvey Weinstein's Claims that Women 'Exaggerated' Slammed by Rosanna Arquette.

Weinstein — who was accused of sexual misconduct by more than 80 women in October 2017 — told the outlet, “I may be a tough guy, but I’m not deranged. Just the threat of Harvey was enough — maybe more than enough. Rosanna Arquette, Gwyneth Paltrow, Angelina Jolie — they just exaggerated. They wanted to be part of the club. And they destroyed me.”

The Desperately Seeking Susan star, Rosanna Arquette, pointed out that Ronan Farrow’s investigation into those claims (made by others as well) substantiated the ‘blackballing’ with respect to me.”

There was/is no ‘club’ to belong to as a Harvey Weinstein assault survivor. Being a survivor of assault or rape is not a club. I can’t believe that has to be said,” Arquette stated.

“When it comes to the events that led to Harvey Weinstein’s convictions, plural, by juries of his peers, here are the facts: The assaults happened. The rapes happened.”
