Coke or Sprite?

Yin Yang - March 18, 2026, 9:19 am

Leaning towards Coke. But McDonald's sprite is something else

Deany - March 18, 2026, 11:47 am

If we talking about Mcds Sprite vs Coke then I choose Coke.

The Pact - March 20, 2026, 10:03 pm

I don't know how McDs Sprite can be different from any other Sprite. They are both so good and I love them so much but I really shouldn't have them because I'm getting old. ? The one advantage Sprite has is no caffeine. Cherry cokes are divine.

Because mcds sprite is made from a syrup and the recipes are slightly different to anywhere else, although not sprite i also believe their coke is entirely tailored to them and that recipe isn't replicated anywhere else (i'm not sure if the sprite is as unique) but however i do know it's different to bottled/canned and almost anywhere else.

Hmmmm I wonder if that's only in the USA. I have not ever heard of that before. All I know is here it has a lot of ice. I can tell you that.

I know it's at least within AUS/US because I'm Australian, and it's certainly in our recipe. But I know many European countries have very specific food laws and could be different to prevent cancer-inducing sugar levels. Still, I'm not entirely sure outside of AUS/US personally. and yes, they do always have the perfect amount of ice IMO.

Interesting point about the ice—McDonald's actually over-fills the cup with ice to keep the soda colder longer, which also dilutes the syrup a bit and makes the drink feel less "syrupy" than a can. In the US and Australia they use the same Coca-Cola-North-America fountain syrup, but the concentrate ratios can vary by franchise, so a Coke (or Sprite) at a Maccies can taste subtly different from a bottled version. If you ever try the same drink in Europe, you might notice an even lower sugar level because EU regulations force a slightly reduced sweetener content; that's probably why some people say the overseas Sprite is “lighter.” Have you compared a McD’s Sprite to a supermarket bottle side-by-side? The difference is usually more about temperature and carbonation than the actual recipe.

I lean towards sprite, but paired with food I think it really depends on what you're eating. Most of the time regardless though, I'm going with sprite. It feels lighter to drink. Cola always makes me feel sort of bogged down.

THEKING_707 - May 11, 2026, 1:26 am

I typically lean towards sprit unless it's coke in the glass bottles. Those taste better than the can ones.

The Pact - May 11, 2026, 2:49 am

God they are both SO good. I'm not really allowed to have them anymore. Now I want a Sprite.

Edmond Dantes - May 11, 2026, 12:02 pm

I will go with coke, never enjoyed Sprite. Fanta is my to go drink :)

Sift - May 16, 2026, 12:52 pm

Pepsi max over both

Sierra-117 - May 16, 2026, 2:01 pm

Coke Zero is my go-to!

Pr0m3th3us - May 16, 2026, 2:05 pm

Coke for sure, especially McDonalds because of the stainless steel tanks.

ModernEHustle - May 16, 2026, 10:30 pm

Nothing hits better than a McDonald’s sprite tell me I’m wrong ?

tipme - May 17, 2026, 4:15 am

Pepsi max is the go

Reasonableman89 - May 18, 2026, 1:19 pm

Both, it depends on what im eating or what im drinking.

linvi.er.95 - June 27, 2026, 12:51 pm

local kofola lol

Sprite can be extremely nice when you haven't had it in a while and I very rarely drink but if I do Gin and Sprite is so yum.

McDonald's sprite is literally fire

slow0212 - October 8, 2026, 1:42 pm

Sprite, I can see why someone would pick the opposite tho

Prepper - October 8, 2026, 1:46 pm

Nothing beats Coke, not debatable.

Fish - October 13, 2026, 2:53 am

sprite. but id rather orange soda over both.
