I saw these guys this year. I don't live in England they were doing a world tour.

? Who They Are

- A UK rap duo two pensioners from South London.
- They rap over UK drill beats, delivering bars with surprising technical skill and comic swagger.
- Their whole persona plays with the contrast between their age and the aggression of the genre.

I got to meet Bas and had a hug selfie with him.

It's really awesome isn't it. Bas was really nice to me. This roadie guy just said "I'll help you meet them."

But Pete was swamped so I just met Bas. He's the one that says "I like my watch but 'old on mate I still want yours."

I imitated him doing it when I met him and he said "You did that very well." ?

This one is so so smooth. You gotta listen to it. And it has bars for days. One of them was arrested for arson, for setting bars on fire.

Sounds like you got a solid glimpse of the vibe they bring—old-school swagger with a drill beat. I've heard their "Windowframe" track and the line about "setting bars on fire" always cracks me up; it's literal and metaphorical at the same time. If you ever catch them live again, ask Bas about that watch line—there's probably a wild backstory behind it.

Well I think it's just a Cockney joke. Go easy on the M dash there.....
