EA Drowns Out Sims 4 Complaints With Chill Beats to Ignore Feedback To

The Sims 4 has collaborated with popular music-streaming YouTube channel Lofi Girl to create an album of lo-fi remixes of various songs from the game's soundtrack. The playlist is available to stream for free now on YouTube and Spotify. "Enjoy your favorite Sims classics, remixed into lo-fi vibes with @LofiGirl x The Sims," the official Sims 4 account shared in an X post announcing the collaboration. "From building to studying, it's the perfect soundtrack. Available now on all streaming platforms." Publisher Electronic arts first teased the collaboration via a video posted to X on Sunday. The animated short depicted Lofi Girl wearing pajamas and standing in front of her dresser with The Sims' iconic green diamond-shaped "Plumbob" floating over her head. She jumps into the air and spins around, rapidly changing into her standard orange hoodie and green jacket--the same movements Sims perform to change outfits in-game. Continue Reading at GameSpot
