Is there anyone else who's a fan of the anime One Punch Man? I personally really enjoy Saitama's adventures, the hero who can defeat any enemy with just one punch

I love it—even though I haven't actually watched it fully. But whenever I come across clips or episode summaries, I watch them. I especially love King's comedic moments and how everyone is so clueless that they don't realize he's just a tall, tough-looking guy who's actually scared of everything around him. I heard some fans were complaining because the animation went from something masterful to being pretty mediocre, or even turning into those PNG-style animations that just move in a stiff, static way.

Tried episode 1 but it just wasn't for me and then years later I heard about how dog shit season 3 (?) was in terms of animation

Me and my buds used to watch it in college. Unfortunately the gap between seasons was soo big that most of them have graduated university already and completely forgotten about it, myself included.
