Thread: My Apology

R5N3T - April 2, 2026, 8:16 am

Last week, I created a new account with the intention of using it to join a forum contest to increase my chances of winning. However, before I could do so, Charlie found out about it, and I decided not to go through with my plan. Therefore, through this thread, I want to sincerely apologize to all of you for my intentions and actions. Even though I never actually did it, I still feel guilty and want to take responsibility by admitting my mistake. Honestly, I was going through financial difficulties at the time, which affected my judgment. I hope everyone can understand my situation, although I know that it does not excuse my actions..

Charlie explained to me that such actions would be considered a form of fraud, and I realize that it was indeed wrong. I am grateful to Charlie for reminding and warning me before I actually went any further."

The Brotherhood group is really great because it does not tolerate my actions, which is why I was removed. I also want to thank 7 for reminding me about this

It takes a big person to own up to what they did and apologize. Good for you.

Apologizing is a trait of the great. I'm glad you acknowledged your mistake, and I hope you overcome your problems quickly.

Your penance includes 10 lashings and a 50$ donation to a charity of your choice.

Lashings sound terrifying oooooooooooooof, big ol' oof.

I have mixed feelings but glad you apologized at least. Next time you're in this spot, don't be afraid to ask for help. You never know who could be willing to help if you do not ask.

Damage control.

If you're so sorry about it, promise you'll get a job so you don't have to lower your own standards like that anymore.

It's good you're honest about it and came clean on time. It says a lot about you. It's not always easy but you did the right thing.

Your online account represents you in entirety. When you try to open another account, you try to rig the system for some gain. This results in losing all credibility. Please try to learn from this experience going forward and build relationships and trust again.

Thank you, I understand. I'll learn from this and work on rebuilding trust
