Heard about this. Easily one of the scariest vulnerabilities found In years instead of you having to download or install anything Its just a watering hole attack using infected websites, just by visiting these websites through Safari the exploit is triggered.

Considering the fact SWIFT based malware for iOS is on the rise, as well as delivery methods specifically for iOS are listed for sale as MaaS on cybercrime forums, I expect this has breached general consumer malware market.

Though DarkSword was(is for some users) quite dangerous, it was used by a select group of individuals instead of the MaaS market which significantly dropped its' blast radius.
