Hello everyone,I'm a new member here. I've been following the tech and security scene for a while and finally decided to join the community.I'm interested in web development and learning more about server-side security. Looking forward to learning from the experts here and contributing where I can.See you around the forums!

Lots of good resources online for learning about the server-side security side of things in this day and age!

Hope you enjoy your time here.
