Thread: Crypto to the Moon!

.Magic - April 23, 2026, 5:40 am

I'm all inning fk it, all my funds going to crypto. 100%. Fk it

It's a digital world, bitcoin is the only truly digital currency, it will never die.

Costanza - April 23, 2026, 6:08 am

I miss when i was excited about buying then i'm down multi 6 digits . now i can't stand it

Maybe you got the chance still. Will you regret even more looking at this post in a few months, or even years?

.Magic - April 23, 2026, 7:43 am

Btc ain't goin no where, it will be the top currency 10 years, million at least. Only currency that can't be inflated, inherently worth the same as cash. Bitcoin is at least better, anonymous, and no one controls it. It's its own animal.

As time goes on people will figure it out that it's just Bitcoin which has value.

If 100% of your holdings was Bitcoin, you wouldn't worry or care about the market.

I know plenty of holders who are just chilling.

I'm slowly converting, still got some ai stocks and other shit. But mostly gonna be btc

Ronaldo4 - April 25, 2026, 2:03 am don't rly think BTC is going to go above 100k in the near future, there is a lot of market manipulation.

but in the far future? maybe

This is true, it's funny how people question Bitcoin when it's bear market but everybody admires it at bull market. You know how many times people who're accumulating BTC for 10 years + heard the phrase that it's going to 0. They are laughing at all these statements on their yachts and supercars.

If you're wasting your money on yachts and supercars, you'll be broke again. Many stories.

The goal, long-term invest and save for your future. Don't just squander your assets into material things with no value.

I guess, we from GenZ are too dumb to realise that yet. I use to be like that, waste money on useless stuff instead of buying assets that will bring me the income to buy what I want.

What would be your best advice to somebody who is starting everything from scratch, as I'm in that position right now.

Focus, be determined, and stay dedicated. If you do that, then you succeed eventually. The lazy, distracted, and half-hearted always fail.

Well, it's almost at $80k rn. No doubt it can reach $100k again.

You might have the chance to recover your losses with ADA. It just takes patience. But I honestly think BTC is the best choice for both recovery and profits for the long run.

I agree , won't be touching ada again . would be shocked if it breaks 70c again

At least you can be assure that if you drown. You will drown with Mr. Michael Saylor.

On a serious note I also believe in Bitcoin. It's the only alternative currency in the world other than fiat that can become a major global currency. It has potential for that and so it's a decent bet.

SIM-1169085 - May 6, 2026, 7:29 pm

Been holding onto 1 Bitcoin for a while now. I believe its almost impossible for it to go down to my original investment price. All these downturns are like nothing to me because were way past the low price cycle I bought in for.

Now I'm starting to diversify into other assets (none crypto) since I dont want to hold all my eggs in one basket.

Mastercarder - May 8, 2026, 6:17 am

"100%" is usually the sentence people post right before becoming exit liquidity.
BTC's not dying anytime soon, but all-in on anything is gambling dressed up as conviction.
Diversification exists for a reason.

Edmond Dantes - May 8, 2026, 6:44 am

I'm curious to see what will happen. The admin statement seems promising and I'm sure he understands crypto better than 99% of the people, so I will follow.

I will do the same thing I always do. Nothing. I just hold my BTC and watch. When you're a BTC holder, you don't really care if it goes up $40k or down $40k.

If BTC this $90k within 30 days, it will do the $105k I predict. Pretty sure we're going to see upticks in May/June.

I am getting as much as I can. Unfortunately it's not much because I'm in the middle of personal bankruptcy. Rip.

awful take. reminds me of when they first cut rates recently . shit started to collapse. it's all priced it doubt it runs till end of year.

?????????? - May 9, 2026, 9:09 am i have all my holding spread out across multiple coins i have roughly a few thousand in each major

crypto

BTC ETH SOL LTC DAI i have some stable coine to USDT trx and on eth chain as well

its been fluxing a bit here and there honestly my biggest payout was with XMR when i had a few thousand in XMR and it sky rocketed to like 800 a coin i cashed out then reinvested when it dropped again now its at $400+ when it was $100-200

Iena - May 9, 2026, 10:12 am bet on polymarket???
