

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: The UAP/UFO executive order - Current rumor is for May 8 release

Hackers - May 7, 2026, 3:39 pm

A few players in this scene are hinting at an initial batch release tomorrow, May 8 2026.

We shall see...

Some quick notes to consider, from what I shared in convo:

Quote:rumor through the grapevine is that trump's executive order for UFO/UAP releases is sending out a batch of files tomorrow. Look up Atomic Energy Act of 1954 though - certain info can't be released, even if president orders it, without D.O.E. and (if military related) D.O.D. approval. BUT should be a fun first batch to kick things off.

I'm assuming it will just be more of the same that we've seen. Physics defying objects and craft that our air force can't keep up with, can't shoot, and can't out-maneuver. So I am looking forward to DOE-protected info in future, but don't have my hopes up for 2026 on those ones.

I'm really hoping they have some of the missile bounces, or 1 of the nuke tests w/ a craft crashing which was redacted but leaked. Fingers crossed, just keep your eyes out over next few days. Knowing the US Gov, it'll probably align with markets a bit.

Remember, even if they do not release tomorrow, the executive order still exists to do so. There will be releases soon enough.

However the Atomic Energy Act / AEA & follow-up laws will make it difficult to release everything. The US President does not have a legal right to declassify atomic-related material which is a very broad classification rule that covers a lot of energy/propulsion/reaction technology (unfortunately -- This is probably the one time I would love to give our current President MORE rights, 100%.... but sadly he doesn't have this right).

With any luck, US Congress can modify or write a new law to bypass AEA. The President could theoretically ignore the law, attempt to declassify & release... and then fight in court for the right, to kick it up to Supreme Court. Until one of these two paths is followed, we are stuck with the current scenario... Trump's executive order doesn't apply to any info that the Department of Energy or (if military related) the Department of Defense/War has approved for declassification.

In other words, we will most likely see a bunch of information that we've seen before, or info that can't possibly be ruled as atomic energy related. What that really means is we will likely not see certain videos or files that are speculated to exist because almost all of the theoretical physics & science that could explain certain propulsion techniques involve radiation, vibrations of resulting particles, or similar chemical reactions that could be hidden away by the AEA laws.

If you are new to this conversation, I encourage you to read up on what's going on currently. The point of this thread is to 1) share that I've heard the rumor that we're getting batch 1 tomorrow, and 2) taper expectations to align with the reality of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (and different laws signed by Eisenhower & other Presidents throughout time) which specifically prevent the sharing of info related to this...

Also, as I've mentioned in a few places...

No matter what - Allow yourself to be open-minded to the evidence, while being simultaneously skeptical and more close-minded to the interpretations.

There are people who are going to use the true information for their own agenda. This will make more sense in time. I hope throughout my threads on this topic I will have influenced enough people in this community, other online sites, and my real friends/family to make important distinctions between what's true, and what's being shared for an ulterior motive. Don't jump to the easiest conclusions, but also don't jump to the first conclusions.

Long road ahead, we'll have plenty of time to think & discuss this more, i'm certain.

bandors - May 7, 2026, 6:27 pm

I really don't expect anything to come from it. I can't imagine a world where no one blew the whistle all this time. Whoever leaked proof to the press would have become the most famous person in human history. I cannot believe America is that competent to keep it under wraps. We lost nuke tech in like two years.

Mastercarder - May 7, 2026, 10:07 pm

Nothing but a big load of distractions

Kaleb - May 7, 2026, 11:10 pm

(May 7, 2026 06:27 PM)bandors Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I really don't expect anything to come from it. I can't imagine a world where no one blew the whistle all this time. Whoever leaked proof to the press would have become the most famous person in human history. I cannot believe America is that competent to keep it under wraps. We lost nuke tech in like two years.

It'd take an insane amount of top down collaboration between insane amounts of people and the best we have is Bob Lazar.

Hackers - May 8, 2026, 5:39 am

May 8 releases can be found here:

<https://www.war.gov/UFO/>

Going to take a while to sift through. It includes decades of documentation suggesting the US Gov has been tracking a series of UAP/UFO incidents. It also includes more recent reports.

I need a coffee & time to go through all this. Some nice pieces I can see already :)

Guys its just a plane, with an extremely intricate frame in the thermo footage!
/s

Please take the time to look through the evidence in Batch 1. Some very interesting info about Apollo missions, military sightings, and more. Videos, photos, and reports... 17 pages of files, it'll take time to go through. I am absolutely certain you will hear about this on MSM, but it's fun to dig around yourself too.

? loading encrypted image...

I encourage users who are skeptical to remain skeptical, but also open-minded. It's one thing to see evidence and find an explanation, and another to completely ignore evidence and downplay the topic.

While there are thousands of videos of orbs online, the chandelier UAP footage is one of the best because it begs the question, what in the fuck has a thermo signature like that? And the answer is that nothing in the public sector has this signature.

DramaKing - May 8, 2026, 2:56 pm

Reporters will sift through it and pull out highlights. For now I fully expect the kinds of things that have already made their way to documentary shows and tabloids. Vague, unclear, reports, some of it directly attributable to pranksters.

Hackers - May 8, 2026, 4:51 pm

(May 8, 2026 02:56 PM)DramaKing Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Reporters will sift through it and pull out highlights. For now I fully expect the kinds of things that have already made their way to documentary shows and tabloids. Vague, unclear, reports, some of it directly attributable to pranksters.

Check out Aldrin & Armstrong reports on Apollo 11, and then the corroborative evidence on Apollo 12 & 17. Very interesting stuff there

- > cylinder flying near space ship, also described as 2 rings of light connected
- > balls of light around ship, and light or neutrons or other particles flashing inside of the ship
- > flashes of light on moon craters, but inconclusive
- > objects around ship, not maintaining relative motion, but seemingly flying away from the ship
- > a bright glowing red object, compared to a satellite but more like a star-point of light, which was in same orbit as ship only a few dozen miles off, and then it left that orbital path never to be seen again

The list goes on, there's a lot there just in Apollo missions. Filter by NASA source and look for those mission reports, photos, etc. Very interesting.

I can personally corroborate the flying form of the 3 orbs (in triangle formation) from 1 photo as an exact match of an elongated triangular 3-point (of light) formation that we've seen a few times, and heard about. Definitely the one i'm most interested in, but lots of them overall.

1 thing I want to address right now... A lot of people seem to think that comments like "its just a dot" or "its just a ball of light" is helpful. Those comments are not helpful.

1. A ball of light is terribly hard to photograph. It looks exactly. as you would expect. I have seen many orbs, and yes, they present as balls of light, or stars. Try photographing a star and tell me if it's crystal clear. It won't be, and that's a huge problem that I see a lot of experiencers face. How are we supposed to photograph a ball of light and convince non-believers? I see the same comments being applied to apollo orbs.

2. It's not about the single photos. Many of the photos are screen grabs and videos are being released soon once processed for redaction. Can vouch for a few at least, but not all.

3. It's about the behavior and movement. If a ball of light is traveling in the orbit of the space ship, and then it changes direction / reverses... That is something we are not physically capable of achieving. So yes, it's just a dot of light, but it's an anomalous ball of light that is superior to any form of movement we can accomplish with our energy systems.

I hope that others (not directed at you dramaking) that are very skeptical can seriously consider the 3 points above. I see the misconceptions of "its just dots" being said by people here, and everywhere, and it really does nothing but to expose the naysayer's own lack of knowledge in this area.

Don't forget to look up - and remember, if that ball of light zips around at 90/180 degree turns without decelerating, you have witnessed a UAP. If you photograph or video it and people tell you "its just a plane", remind yourself to ignore them. I've gotten good at it, but feel the need to put out information because there are so many people just like me that have our own personal experiences, and listening to naysayer's online who would fail basic HS physics class can be frustrating (not at you dramaking, just wanted to use my limited time right now to mention all this).

LASTLY...

The order is for UNIDENTIFIED aerial phenomenon. People are acting all surprised that there are no IDENTIFIED extraterrestrials or fully IDENTIFIED objects... But the executive order was to release inconclusive, UNIDENTIFIED phenomenon, and that's what we got.

I was worried about this scenario where people expected too much, and perhaps that's because Trump's tweets hyped things up a bit more than his order asked for.

It's important to look at these from a scientific angle. I think there's more than enough to keep any person busy for days, but I think that the marketing hype probably damaged people's reception today, and there are lot of people looking for crystal clear photos of weird things even though there's more than enough evidence in this batch alone to keep any physicist, propulsion expert, etc busy.

Pr0m3th3us - May 8, 2026, 5:44 pm

(May 7, 2026 10:07 PM)Mastercarder Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Nothing but a big load of distractions

Yep exactly. They didn't release the entire Epstein files let alone prosecute anyone except madam G, so here we are, another files release. Psh what a joke, i wonder how many redactions and black lines we are gonna see now.

Hackers - May 8, 2026, 6:44 pm

(May 8, 2026 05:44 PM)Rust-0l3um Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yep exactly. They didn't release the entire Epstein files let alone prosecute anyone except madam G, so here we are, another files release. Psh what a joke, i wonder how many redactions and black lines we are gonna see now.

I don't understand this.

What did you expect to see? What are you calling a joke, or nothing? There are several very interesting documents released and as I and many others have said, this is just tranche/batch 1 of many, of UNIDENTIFIED / INCONCLUSIVE evidence, so you can't really expect to see a crystal clear photo of something that is identified and conclusive, given the exact purpose.

Just in general - not directly related to Rust-0l3um...

For Epstein, of course they didn't release the files. Alito tried the first Epstein case, let him off easy, and then got hired by Trump. Bondi let off Trump university and got hired by Trump. There are several people IN THE EPSTEIN FILES that are hired by Trump... and then we have to recognize also that Trump is in the files, was friends with every player in the files pretty much, and very close to Epstein.

so the idea that the Trump admin would release all the Epstein files and prosecute is actually a fucking joke.

I'm sure some complete morons will respond to me here and tell me that Trump isn't guilty or suspected of fucking children. I want to emphasize that people who believe that are absolutely bat shit crazy and the conspiracy that Trump is somehow innocent in all this should be diagnosable as a form of blindness and deafness.

Just saying...

Don't worry guys, we'll get to the bottom of both cases. But I can personally swear on my life that there are photos and videos in the first UAP release that match my own personal experiences - like we witnessed these, we saw them, we recorded orbs just like them... Unless me and thousands of others for the last few years (much longer though really) are all lying (we're not), it's really hard to be patient when ppl just look at things like "nah" without any thought about it.

This release is just surface level, UNIDENTIFIED / INCONCLUSIVE files (literally, the order is to release unidentifiable data) with much more to come, and we're off to a great start already.

If you know anything about physics, you can read between the lines and understand the importance of many of the files. It's not about seeing a crystal clear photo - we have an abundance of evidence that the world's top scientists are acknowledging that there are maneuvers being witnessed that are out of line with our capabilities. Radar and other sensors are 100% more effective at tracking that than cameras, but the internet has a fit because a sphere at 30K altitude isn't rendered in 4K. Gimme a break lmfao.

Most of the naysayers i've witnessed on HF are probably just looking for something they won't receive, because they are asking for camera quality levels that don't exist, for objects that are so bright you wouldn't even want a regular camera anyways.

I chuckle a bit tbh.

Pr0m3th3us - May 8, 2026, 9:37 pm

(May 8, 2026 06:44 PM)Hackers Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't understand this.

What did you expect to see? What are you calling a joke, or nothing? There are several very interesting documents released and as I and many others have said, this is just tranche/batch 1 of many, of UNIDENTIFIED / INCONCLUSIVE evidence, so you can't really expect to see a crystal clear photo of something that is identified and conclusive, given the exact purpose.

Just in general - not directly related to Rust-0l3um...

For Epstein, of course they didn't release the files. Alito tried the first Epstein case, let him off easy, and then got hired by Trump. Bondi let off Trump university and got hired by Trump. There are several people IN THE EPSTEIN FILES that are hired by Trump... and then we have to recognize also that Trump is in the files, was friends with every player in the files pretty much, and very close to Epstein.

so the idea that the Trump admin would release all the Epstein files and prosecute is actually a fucking joke.

I'm sure some complete morons will respond to me here and tell me that Trump isn't guilty or suspected of fucking children. I want to emphasize that people who believe that are absolutely bat shit crazy and the conspiracy that Trump is somehow innocent in all this should be diagnosable as a form of blindness and deafness.

Just saying...

Don't worry guys, we'll get to the bottom of both cases. But I can personally swear on my life that there are photos and videos in the first UAP release that match my own personal experiences - like we witnessed these, we saw them, we recorded orbs just like them... Unless me and thousands of others for the last few years (much longer though really) are all lying (we're not), it's really hard to be patient when ppl just look at things like "nah" without any thought about it.

This release is just surface level, UNIDENTIFIED / INCONCLUSIVE files (literally, the order is to release unidentifiable data) with much more to come, and we're off to a great start already.

If you know anything about physics, you can read between the lines and understand the importance of many of the files. It's not about seeing a crystal clear photo - we have an abundance of evidence that the world's top scientists are acknowledging that there are maneuvers being witnessed that are out of line with our capabilities. Radar and other sensors are 100% more effective at tracking that than cameras, but the internet has a fit because a sphere at 30K altitude isn't rendered in 4K. Gimme a break lmfao.

Most of the naysayers i've witnessed on HF are probably just looking for something they won't receive, because they are asking for camera quality levels that don't exist, for objects that are so bright you wouldn't even want a regular camera anyways.

I chuckle a bit tbh.

Pretty easy to understand. They are trying to distract the sheeple. If you are distracted by it then they won, and you are a sheep. Prob a boomer who moves from 1 topic to the next every week like the MSN wants you to. Same principle as short form videos like insta, ticktok, shorts want, except not quite as fast. They don't want you to think about it or realize your being sold a lie. So BAM all of a sudden here is another topic for you to focus on and your sold. Because trumps voters started to realize they were sold a lie on the epstien files, and started demanding they do something about it. I personally want the people responsible and linked to epstien to be prosecuted and put to justice rather than focusing on some random blurry, pixelated photo i cant prove is real and doesn't effect me whatsoever so be my on my mind. I live in the real world man, not what they want you to.

Hackers - May 9, 2026, 5:54 am

(May 8, 2026 09:37 PM)Rust-0l3um Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Pretty easy to understand. They are trying to distract the sheeple. If you are distracted by it then they won, and you are a sheep. Prob a boomer who moves from 1 topic to the next every week like the MSN wants you to. Same principle as short form videos like insta, ticktok, shorts want, except not quite as fast. They don't want you to think about it or realize your being sold a lie. So BAM all of a sudden here is another topic for you to focus on and your sold. Because trumps voters started to realize they were sold a lie on the epstien files, and started demanding they do something about it. I personally want the people responsible and linked to epstien to be prosecuted and put to justice rather than focusing on some random blurry, pixelated photo i cant prove is real and doesn't effect me whatsoever so be my on my mind. I live in the real world man, not what they want you to.

We saw our own sightings before Trump was even in office again to do this. I ask or perhaps beg you to not try to say this is all bullshit because of Trump, especially because a lot of the evidence released was leaked prior to Trump, and in some cases - many years ago.

I posted multiple times about this before any of this. It's such a risk to mankind to just disregard the entire movement because of Trump. This transcends just Trump and extends across multiple countries. Arguably way more important than Epstein too. This is more impactful and has bigger implications for science. Epstein is a low impact, high-attention topic comparatively, but still both are important.

You're not wrong about Trump's intentions probably, but your feedback doesn't just invalidate the entire movement just because of Epstein.

You are hurting the UAP disclosure movement with your hot take here. It's a rough one because a lot of this has been in motion for years, I'm not going to discredit my own knowledge and sightings just because I hate Trump.

Trump is obviously a fraud and pedophile and anyone who supported him in 2024 is objectively a retard with literally no social skills or critical thinking (with 0 exceptions)... So, yeah he's going to spin it.

Trump voters are like naive children, they are so easy to manipulate because of how stupid they are... Going to be a long road ahead because Trump will continue to take advantage of his own followers

But the problem is that it damages the completely unrelated, real UAP topic because of how much of a joke his administration is. It's like watching a bunch of toddlers with down syndrome put on suits, and then a bunch of neanderthal inbreds praise how smart he is, and then a bunch of non-Trumpers (including me) stay mad at him & his cult to the degree of forgetting what really matters (not I though!). Seriously, i can't really attribute a single ounce of intelligence more than that to 2026 MAGAs, BUT I also think it's a huge risk to erase the UAP efforts because of it.

They really do represent a wafting, foul-smelling, incestuous clusterfuck of mental retardation, and nothing more.

BUT... This shit-pants President isn't wrong about UAP, and ironically there are people in the government actually blocking the release of files so that Trump CAN'T release all.

Look into AEA 1954, what's going on with DIA & CIA, and classification levels. Rep Burlison is already threatening to release files illegally if Trump's team does not, meanwhile Grusch claims that Bradley Hansel and a few others are blocking releases.

I've noticed a lot of people on HF are misinterpreting the files. This was batch 1 of unidentified evidence, we're at like lets say 1% of the available files. Just like there are millions of more Epstein files, there are millions of more UAP files.

I hope this post makes sense. I wanted to make it clear that I am not a follower of Donald Trump. The man is deranged and his followers are simps. But at the same time, I have enough knowledge in the UAP world that I will not just discount the entire movement because DTrumpf happened to be the fuckface that got things rolling - especially because this all really kicked off under Joe Biden a few years ago and this is just a continuation of that.

But also not surprised.. In disclosure discussions this was flagged as a risk. Trump's team being the one to release the files allows people to ignore it more easily than if a real, credible President released the data. That's been discussed for months, so I understand your hot take - it's just incorrect.