Thread: The Trump T1 Phone Is Real

DramaKing - May 19, 2026, 5:57 am

NBC News just showcased what was broadly believed to be vaporware. No details on specs or hardware other than 512GB ROM because MAGA folks just care about what the phone looks like and the Trump name. It's also been confirmed that the phone will not be US-made because of course onshoring smartphone production would require funds and a labor pool that would make production a logistical nightmare. It's only US-designed and assembled but nearly identical to an HTC white-label phone.

I don't get the reference, but Don Sr. has nothing to do with Trump Mobile as he had to give up running his business empire. But it's not like the second generation knows what they're doing.

Yes, I just read that Trump Mobile was selling refurbished iPhones and Samsung phones as being made in America.

Yeah although it's not hard for him to be getting business deals through a proxy partner or family member or happen to tell a room of buddies upcoming policies and can be valuable to invest in or pull out of.

Just a promotion for an ugly phone... in my humble opinion, the phone is extremely, extremely ugly.

Rahul007rhp - May 21, 2026, 2:37 am

Intrested to see what kind of specs it would have. Plus they could have atleast made it look lil better

TheNaturalBoy - May 21, 2026, 10:38 pm

Hey, I'm genuinely not an expert in international politics, history, sociology, or anything like that, but doesn't this merchandise and these products look more like the beginning of a personality cult around the President of the United States? I don't know why, but if it were within their power, I feel like they'd be capable of holding parades, marches, and government events like the ones they do in North Korea with images of their leaders, or like Stalin and his associates used to do.

You're starting to get it. Trump is doing everything for the country, but he's running afoul of a lot of laws and court orders in the process. That golden Trump statue is not good, either. Still, there's been no revolution, and the Constitution is still in place. Trump isn't disappearing his political opponents, either.

Yeah Captain America is now dropping his first phone after having an shitstorm about not dropping it and already accepting payments -_-

jcole - May 25, 2026, 11:32 am

I read that the phone was a flop, and that there is a huge security vulnerability on their website.

All pre-order clients addresses and info leaked.

Ignoring the sarcastic nickname, 11 months is actually not an unrealistic figure for a company with no wireless or manufacturing background to bring a phone with unrealistic claims to market.

I mean u could Preorder it June 2025 and they said it would come August 2025 update they shipped the first ones in MAY 2026

U could argue that the Company has no history with Manufacturing but that thing is made in China it only has a Made in USA plate on it because these steps are made in the USA applying the gold-plated casing finish, laser-etching the American flag logo, and boxing the device the rest is made in China this is crazy man!
