Thread: What is a gay looking pro wrestling move/gesture?

f o r m i d a b l e - May 28, 2026, 9:25 pm

I used to prepare for tables, ladders, and chairs, until I realized school wrestling was boring and didn't stay long.

Name a move or few to discuss. There has to be at least 20 overall hopefully.

To start off, I think the stone cold stunner was gay, because originally, he used to aim for the balls.

Can't say I can really contribute to this thread, but.....

why in the fuck is your topic saying your looking for gay wrestling moves? Not really sure what kind of responses the community is going to give on this one.

I need to know if they can see it. They have some moves that are gay if used in street fights. I grew through the 'attitude era', but there is a new era and different pro wrestling corporations now that I haven't kept up with.

There is one in Pro like that, but the dude will sit his crouch directly on top of the dude's face, fold their arms so they don't pin, in order to finish a 1, 2, 3 count. Hella gay.

Anyways, here is one that's hella gay. From Rikishi

Rubbing a man's face in his ass is a victory or arousal?

I always thought the school wrestling starting pose was the gayest of all, getting behind the dude to dominate and butt fuck him is all it seemed to me back when I attended the physical education class. Honestly I think overall male wrestling has a very homosexual rape feeling. Also UFC.

True story, in my very first wrestling, my first move was switching around for a headlock. On the ground, the opponent was literally grabbing my balls twice. It was embarrassing that later I realized some kids was wooing at him for grabbing my sack.

Yes, public school is a sick twisted place. I'm in my 40's and still reflecting from the social experience. Pub School is def better I will say in the united states now. I went when when the teachers forbid even a calculator. It was a very different time in the 80's and 90's...

Okay but, you know Paul Heyman liked it right?

Damn, seems you kids don't even watch wrestling like we did. It was huge in attitude era and the talk of the town.

The whole minute, he didn't even move an ounce of leg/hip muscle just to roll out the way. He stayed there to get sexually harassed in public, and nobody called the cops except for Mr. McMahon on Stone Cold.

IDK about him, but I sense he's OD on legal brain and stamina boosters.
