

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What do you use for browsing the internet?

aerozprit - June 9, 2026, 3:13 am

Hello,

Do you guys have any browser and search engine proposes?

I have tried different kind of them, but not sure which one is good one for anonymity and cybersafety.

Sorry already if this post is in wrong place, I couldn't find right place for this so I try lounge.

Happy summer u all

xoxo Aerozprit

Deany - June 9, 2026, 3:15 am

Firefox with ublock origin is just about my setup.

aerozprit - June 9, 2026, 3:40 am

(Jun 9, 2026 03:15 AM)Deany Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Firefox with ublock origin is just about my setup. Okay, I switched from that to brave. Are you using google or what for search engine?

anua - June 9, 2026, 3:42 am

I use Firefox on PC since I avoid Chromium based browsers. I find that it does what I need it to do without problems.

On my phone I don't bother using anything other than Safari.

Mercury - June 9, 2026, 4:33 am

I've been running Firefox for a long time. For some reason it's been a memory hog lately though so Brave has been working better for me. If you haven't tried Brave, you should.

Mastercarder - June 9, 2026, 6:08 am

Brave browser and will never change!!

Slobodan - June 9, 2026, 7:25 am

Mullvad browser is good and suitable for vpn connections.

UPGRADING - June 9, 2026, 11:36 am

I have 4 browsers, chrome, edge, brave and firefox, daily driving brave with lotta plugins, use edge for shopping, I like their price history checker, chrome for yt, firefox for all geeky stuff like web exploitation learning

Thalion - June 9, 2026, 5:52 pm

I agree with the member who recommended Mullvad Browser with VPN. Mullvad Browser also blocks the privacy violating GPU fingerprinting that most browsers suffer from.

Mullvad browser + VPN. :-)

I edited because I can't spell.

Molegrips - June 9, 2026, 5:54 pm

brave browser for the last few years and wouldn't change it for the world

Charlie Sheen - June 9, 2026, 6:28 pm

Brave. I made the switch from Chrome years back and it was a lot easier of a switch than I anticipated.

cl0udzz - June 9, 2026, 11:34 pm

I've been using Firefox ever since I was a kid and honestly It's pretty good, I also recommend pairing it with ublock origin and some other extensions(<https://privacytoolslist.com/#firefox-addons>). For more privacy I use mullvad browser because it has basically no fingerprint.

Yani - June 10, 2026, 2:50 am

LibreWolf with the following extensions:

- uBlock Origin
- CanvasBlocker
- ClearURLs
- Decentraleyes
- Font Fingerprint Defender

baseballguy03 - June 14, 2026, 12:21 am

Brave browser mainly, though SRWare Iron is a good alternative bitlocker - June 16, 2026, 10:36 am

(Jun 9, 2026 03:13 AM)aerozprit Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hello,

Do you guys have any browser and search engine proposes?

I have tried different kind of them, but not sure which one is good one for anonymity and cybersafety.

Sorry already if this post is in wrong place, I couldn't find right place for this so I try lounge.

Happy summer u all

xoxo Aerozprit

I use octobrowser. Which is basically a ANTI DETECT browser. Really good if you want privacy. I recommend connecting a proxy to the session you are going to connect to in the antidetect browser as well.

Ryan Carter - September 2, 2026, 10:03 am

For everyday use, Firefox with enhanced tracking protection and DuckDuckGo is a good combination. If stronger anonymity is actually needed, Tor Browser is the better option, although it can be slower. No browser makes someone completely anonymous by itself, so account logins, extensions, downloads, and browsing habits still matter.

OGTHUNDERJAB - September 7, 2026, 11:39 am brave + vpn (not any though, forget the [censored] and stuff) , are great actually

CyberXero - September 8, 2026, 3:21 am

Firefox, Wrapped inside a VM

Respect - September 9, 2026, 1:32 am

I use Chrome with adblocker & tracker blocker extensions.