It is very easy to make one in python. You can find open source codes on GitHub as well.

I'm currently looking for a lightweight, high-performance email extraction tool capable of large-scale web crawling and extracting millions of publicly listed email addresses based on configurable keywords, search queries, and domains.

Key requirements:

- Low resource consumption
- High-speed crawling and extraction
- Keyword-based discovery
- Ability to process millions of results at scale
- Support for filtering, deduplication, and export
- Stable performance during large extraction jobs

If you have an existing tool, custom solution, or relevant recommendation, please contact me on Telegram: @Che_ghetto90. or just dm
