Need more context. Are you trying to change the icon/name for presentation purposes, or are you trying to make the file appear as something else?

I think both . I want the user to see something else than filename.exe like filename.jpgsexex maby even better if possible?

Thank you

An extension spoofer is what you're after.

SmartScreen, Browser scanning and sysinternals will pull out their dick and fuck you raw then report you to the police to get you dry.

Your use of English makes this unclear. Are you wanting RTLO? (filenames?(gpj.exe

The icon will still be application, though. You could just change the extension, too. Unfortunately, even hackers can't get everything they want.
