Thread: Cracked \$50,000 a month.

Been a few months but it's quite consistent now and only going higher. While I do just gamble most of it away, I never thought I'd get to this point. I sell a "service" so it's tax free and expense free in the grand scheme of things, and not completely white hat but it's crazy to me how far I've scaled it up. It's taken a lot of effort to get it to where I wanted, considering I had to reach out to people individually and pitch them but once that was done and I had a good client base, they started referring people to me and now it's all being expanded at a good rate.

While it is a great feeling seeing the money come in (and out, which doesn't feel so great lol bit of a waste at times) I sometimes sit and wonder if I didn't have this going on, I might actually have been doing better working a normal job and saving that money.

But anyway, you live and learn. For anyone who thinks it's not possible, I have a few pointers.

I started when I was 16 - not in this, but just hustling. I was always looking for ways to make money. I tried everything - eBooks, dropshipping, crypto, etc. Nothing really stood out. It wasn't until I found this certain niche where I realised how much opportunity there is - and the skill of being able to pitch / sell is everything in the world. I didn't finish uni, I fucked around majority of my schooling life, and I have the worst discipline ever and while what I do isn't necessarily "whitehat" I as a fuck up was able to accomplish something that majority of people in my country would never reach without an inheritance or something of the sort.

I don't really tell anyone about this in person, so I guess I just wanted to mention it and I guess have a chat with anyone who might feel inclined to leave a comment haha

This is giving major scam vibes. You're out here bragging about making big money, but you don't drop any details or even ask for anything. So what's the flex for? Trying to bait newbies who'll hit you up?

Just felt like yapping man. I have nothing to gain, and if anyone hits me up I wouldn't reply but you're free to think what you want.

In life you will always have doubters, some even demanding proof. You owe them nothing. ?

Any admin can feel free to go through my messages & determine whether that's the case.

Everyone's quick to judge - rightfully so, but don't just assume.
