Anyone using it? I've delved into it yesterday after seeing the buzz around it the past week on Robinhood. It's fairly intuitive and I like the social community and engagement.

Here's my portfolio so far:

Haven't used it myself as that's not necessarily the type of trading I do, I'm not a social trader nor am I chasing hype.

However, KOL marketing through FOMO has been incredibly powerful. KOL marketing has taken a nose dive in our current bear market, and FOMO has breathed some fresh life into it.

X engagement driven by FOMO has been nuts these past couple of weeks. With memes being the clear front-runner, this is kind of what Moonshot should've been. You can easily deposit and use debit too, making it very noob-friendly and accessible to the masses.

FOMO fees on small trades and routing/slippage/fills in general are absolute garbage, it's getting pushed by KOLs purely due to partnerships and ref farming.

You're better off using a terminal like Axiom or Padre, though unfortunately it's a bit hard to navigate on mobile. GMGN is pretty good too and most people around me that are into Robinhood memecoins (assuming you are too due to the portfolio card) use it.

I never realized FOMO was so fucked.

Can you really not set your slippage?

No way I'm putting a high slippage like that. They're going to yoink half your profits basically.
