

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Experienced E-Commerce Partner

spnkinginf998877 - September 15, 2026, 9:23 am

Looking for an Experienced E-Commerce Partner

I'm looking for someone experienced in building and growing online stores, with a proven track record and successful projects behind them.

The goal is simple: build business stores for one or a few products and generate strong, consistent sales through smart advertising and effective marketing.

I'm not looking for someone who only knows how to set up a store. I'm looking for someone who understands the full process — store creation, product positioning, advertising, marketing, optimization, and most importantly, turning traffic into sales.

The products will be offered at very competitive prices — better than what you can find elsewhere in the market, giving us a strong advantage from the start.

To make sure we're both focused on results, I'm willing to offer a percentage of the revenue/sales as part of the cooperation.

If you have:

Proven experience with successful e-commerce projects

A strong understanding of paid advertising and marketing

Experience generating real sales, not just traffic

The ability to build and optimize stores professionally

A results-driven mindset

Send me a message with some examples of your previous work, your experience, and how you would approach this project.

I'm looking for a serious, long-term cooperation with someone who knows what they're doing and is confident in delivering results.

[contract=tid]Start Contract[/contract]