Thread: Country that you prefer to live in?

oRequiem - October 12, 2026, 2:01 pm

If you were to move away from your country, which country would you choose to stay at?
Japan seems the most plausible for me since I really do like their culture.

Sift - October 12, 2026, 2:07 pm

I think china or japan to be honest.

Just not a place I'd prefer to live in really. Not much to it.

One of the most technologically developed countries in the world.

I see the amount of people isn't appealing for you.

Even though japan has a lot of people, culture I mostly love. Love the area as well.

I've never been there, but I believe Norway would suit me

Laughing Man - October 14, 2026, 1:46 am

I've only ever LIVED in the US, I'd like to see what UK is like.

Norway is nice but there are nicer countries out there.

High tech city of course.

My place may change the more I go looking
, I might change my mind.

Yin Yang - October 14, 2026, 7:01 am

Japan or Spain would be pretty dope

Deany - October 14, 2026, 7:23 am

None, just give me my own private island

Jamika - October 14, 2026, 10:21 am

I'll always dream of visiting Russia. I know everyone's going to attack me for saying this, but I love the snow there, the people seem tough, and the women are absolutely stunning... Ohhh, that's my kind of world! Hahahahaha! ?

Jinu - October 14, 2026, 11:48 am

I like Japan too, but I prefer places outside of big cities. The tech and screens are cool, but sometimes I miss the quieter, more traditional aspects of the city.

Hern - October 15, 2026, 7:57 am

New Zealand seems pretty peaceful from what I hear at least.

sozudie - October 16, 2026, 2:35 am

Summer somewhere in the north like denmark or sweeden or Russia.
Winter somewhere like australia

Pimping - October 16, 2026, 7:55 pm

Japan or Dubai probably the only downside to Dubai is its supposed to be extremely hot all year around... but its a great place to live if you have your own business.. 0% income tax

Th3HulK - October 17, 2026, 8:23 am

For me, it has to be somewhere in Europe, probably Portugal or Spain. Good weather, way more relaxed work culture, decent healthcare, and you can actually integrate without speaking the language perfectly on day one. Cost of living is reasonable outside the big cities too
